Section I:

GOALS

The College's goals for AY 2018-2019 are listed below with the current status of each. These goals are excerpted from the College's 2015-2020 Strategic Plan, which intentionally aligns closely with the University's Strategic Plan.

Goal 1: Advance student success through recruitment and retention of prepared students at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

A. Enhance Student Success Initiatives

We have continued the expansion, evaluation, and improvement of CLA First! and SophoMORE (See Appendix 1 for details). CLA First! is currently in its ninth year, and continues to grow. Key initiatives and successes of these programs this year are:

- The retention rates of CLA First! compare very favorably to the overall CLA population. This year, we retained an impressive 89% of the CLA First! 2018-19 cohort into Fall 2019. By comparison, the overall retention rate for first-time, full-time freshmen students in CLA into their sophomore year has ranged from 75 to 80%
- The four-year graduation rate of CLA First! students continues to be high, and has indeed gone up: 40% of the 2015-16 cohort graduated in four years, compared to 34% of the 2014-15 cohort. By comparison, the four-year graduation rate for the overall CLA student population is 26% for the last year of data collected.
- Start Smart sessions were offered regularly, and continued to mix academic skills with social opportunities. Building upon previous campus networks, this year the program made connections with Residence Life.
- Academic Advising continues to form a crucial component of the CLA First! and SophoMORE programs. In 2018-19, the programs were also able to add drop-in advising hours.
- New this year, the academic component of CLA SophoMORE expanded to two sections of 25 students each, taught by faculty in the English Department.
- CLA First! is growing to a capacity of 135 students for the 2019-2020 cohort, and is working on enhancing its programming to meet the larger cohort.
- The SophoMORE program continued to partner with Career Services and University Advancement to offer job shadowing opportunities to students. There were 24 participating employers, compared to 16 in the previous year.

B. Continue Improvement of Departmental Advising Systems

AY 2018-2019 was our third year of continuous programming providing academic advising to all CLA students with declared majors regardless of how long they had attended the University or the number of credits they had accrued. Details of the activities of the CLA Advising Office are in Appendix 2. Key initiatives, successes and improvements of our Advising Program this year are listed below:

- AY 18-19 was the first year in which CLA Advising had a director, two associate directors, and an assistant director. This has allowed a clear allocation of responsibilities and systematic communication and collaboration among directors to ensure uninterrupted student service during staff absence or turnover, precise tracking and efficient use of office budget, continuous staff oversight, increased in-house professional development, improved data tracking processes, and guaranteed administrator presence or availability during emergency student situations.
- Our advising office continues its collaboration with the University Advising Center (UAC) in designing, delivering, and assessing the CLA New Student Advising and Registration (NSAR) sessions offered during orientation for new students, both freshmen and transfers. In AY 2018-2019, we built on improvements which we implemented last year. For instance, during Summer 19, CLA Advising is collaborating with the Registrar's office to monitor freshmen whose Advanced Placement (AP) or International Baccalaureate (IB) credits are posted after they have enrolled in classes. CLA advisors will reach out to their caseloads to adjust enrollment if students are enrolled in courses which repeat transfer credit. The course recommendations, the NSAR sessions, the AP and IB credit outreach, and the subsequent review and outreach are initiatives which promote success.
- In AY 2018-2019, the CLA Advising Office conducted 14% more advising meetings than in AY 17-18. Advisors met with 3730 individual students, which is 24% more than the year before. In addition, the CLA Advising Office offered increased availability to students at high-need times by holding drop-ins.
- Continuing (non-graduating) students who worked with a CLA advisor re-enrolled at higher rates than students who did not: 14% higher re-enrollment from fall to spring and 35% higher early re-enrollment from spring to fall. Early re-enrollment is key to avoiding cancellation of low-enrolled classes and disrupting other students' degree plans. Receiving CLA advising has correlated with higher re-enrollment rates every year our office has collected these data. In Spring 19, we see a 10% higher difference in favor of those who worked with a CLA advisor (Spring 19=35%; Spring 18 = 25%). This is evidence of the increasingly positive impact of CLA Advising on persistence.
- As part of its robust assessment procedure, our advising office conducts student surveys twice a year (in the Fall and Spring semesters). Comprehensive survey results and conclusions for AY 18-19 are detailed in Appendix 2. By and large, survey results reflect the positive impact of advising on students' academic careers.
- In the spring 2019 term, the CLA Advising office launched social media communication on two platforms: Twitter and Instagram. The office has used Instagram to connect with campus departments, promote activities, and invite students to events.

C. Improve Academic Support, the Reading, Writing, and Study Skills Center, and the Graduate Writing Center.

Unfortunately, much of this is still a work in progress. The rubrics for moving the Writing Center responsibilities fully to the English Department are still being developed. This would require a new hire in the English Department, hopefully at the senior level, to continue the momentum of enhancing the Writing Center support at the undergraduate and graduate level and this has yet to be authorized given severe budget restrictions. At this time, it is still not clear if this hire will be authorized for FY21. In the meantime, we are using some funds from the Mellon grant (see below) to boost the capacity for undergraduate tutoring in English. In addition, we have identified an outside donor interested in supporting student writing whose donations we hope will supplement university funds and facilitate the full transference of the writing center to the English Department.

D. Enhancing the Pre-Law Advising Program in Collaboration with Career Services and University Advising.

The College of Liberal Arts collaborated with Career Services and University Advising to enhance pre-law advising. During this academic year, pre-law advisors from the University Advising Center and Office of Career Services and Internships conducted a total of 71 pre-law student and alumni appointments as well as managed 198 pre-law email correspondence with students, alumni, faculty, and pre-law related organizations/institutions. On average, 70 students and 25 alumni were active on the Pre-Law listserv during the 2018-2019 academic year. During the Fall 2018 semester, 25 UMass Boston students/alumni matriculated into law school (56% of those who applied). For the coming academic year, 50 UMass Boston students and alumni have applied for admission for fall 2019. This is a 21.95% increase from last academic year. Key events and activities of pre-law advising are enumerated below:

- The pre-law advisors Jennifer Barone and Joyce Morrissey, who work closely with faculty in CLA, continued to coordinate workshops and events with local law schools. In addition to the formal law school information programs, the University of Massachusetts School of Law was invited to staff an information table in the Campus Center as this approach was more successful than information sessions for this institution. In addition to law school information sessions, there was a pre-law advising presence with Political Science Professor Elizabeth Bussiere's annual Law School/Grad School Alumni Panel, with both pre-law advisors collaborating with Professor Bussiere to implement this event. About 20 students attended this always-popular event to learn more about the law school and graduate school application process.
- This year, the Pre-Law Student Club is under new leadership and has been more consistent and active. They operate independently, but are responsive to advisors' inquiries, keep us informed of their events and ask for help in publicizing them.
- During the Fall 2018 semester, new posters promoting pre-law services debuted on the campus buses. The pre-law section of UMass Boston's website was also updated to include more information on the 3+3 program with UMass Law School.
- In fall 2018, 25 UMass Boston students/alumni matriculated into law school. Students/alumni matriculated into the following institutions: Suffolk University Law School, New England Law | Boston, Boston College, Cornell Law School, University of Miami School of Law, California Western School of Law,

University of Massachusetts School of Law-Dartmouth, Fordham University School of Law, Western New England University School of Law, and Roger Williams University School of Law.

- Pre-Law students continued to participate in experiential learning opportunities. The Justice Bridge Legal Center's Legal Intern position continues to be a popular choice amongst pre-law students, with 4 students serving as legal interns during the 2018-2019 academic year.
- Professor Phil Kretsedemas of the Sociology Department initiated a meeting with the Pre-Law Committee (a group consisting of the CLA Dean's office staff, CLA faculty members, pre-law advisors, and Career Services staff) to discuss the possibility of applying for a Diversity Pipeline Grant. The Diversity Pipeline Research Grant Program awards grants to current or proposed programs that provide college students and/or college graduates from historically underrepresented groups with information and resources premised on aiding their successful matriculation into law school and the legal profession. A second meeting in February 2019 included the UMass Law Dean and members of his staff, members of the UMass Boston Pre-Law Committee, staff from the UMass Boston University Advancement Office, and administrators from the Office of the Vice Provost for Academic Support Services. At present, Professor Kretsedemas, CLA First! Director Rachel Puopolo and the pre-law advisors continue to discuss the pipeline, the grant application, increasing visibility for pre-law, identifying interested students, and other possible initiatives to promote the 3+3 program and pre-law interest in general. There is an emphasis on identifying and cultivating interest in law-related careers early on in students' undergraduate careers, through course bundles and the CLA First! cohort program.

E. Continue to Liaise from Orientation to Graduation with CLA Career Specialists and Expand Internship and Job Shadowing Opportunities for Undergraduates.

The College of Liberal Arts collaborated with CLA Career Services Specialists along with other members of the Career Services team in a sustained and robust manner.

Appendix 3 details the various aspects of this collaboration. Highlights include:

- In support of the College of Liberal Arts' academic mission, the CLA Career Specialists, along with other members of the Career Services team, presented 70 classroom presentations reaching approximately 1401 students. The CLA Career Specialists provided (1) workshop to graduate students in the Sociology Pro-seminar. Additionally, CLA students were able to participate in career programs like the Career Symposium, Pre-Law Workshops, CLA First!, SophoMORE, and an Etiquette Dinner. The CLA Career Specialists provided 24 special events and workshops, outside of the classroom, to approximately 266 students.
- This past academic year, many employers, including the City of Boston, Loomis Sayles, Massachusetts State Police, Peace Corps, Sherwin Williams, The U.S. Coast guard, Vermont Police, Boston Police Department, and Boston Public Health Commission were on campus to recruit students for opportunities. In the spring of 2019 semester 100 employers attended the Career Expo. The Career Specialists for CLA actively promoted employer sessions as well as internship and job opportunities to students through individual appointments, emails, and during classroom presentations as applicable. The Career Specialist also hosted workshops on “How to Market Your Liberal Arts Degree” and “How to Prepare for the Career Fair.”

- The Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts collaborated with the Associate Director for Career Education to develop course curricula for both a one-credit and three-credit version of a new College of Liberal Arts Careers in Humanities Course. The one credit course will run in the fall of 2019.
- At CLA’s Undergraduate Research Week poster presentations, the Career Services and Employer Relations Specialist for CLA was present to interact with the presenters, introduce the Office of Career Services and Internships, and encouraged students to visit Career Services. Students’ work was documented in a short video and highlighted in on the @beaconcareers social media platforms.

Goal 2: Enriching and expanding academic programs and research and new interdisciplinary programming at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Develop select undergraduate interdisciplinary programs in areas of demonstrated need and demand.

A. Expanding Academic Programs

Due to the moratorium on the approval of new programs at the University level, our momentum in creating new programs has been hindered. Nevertheless, programs that are relatively new have been making solid progress and we have a queue of requested programs awaiting governance evaluation and approval.

1. Progress in Newer Undergraduate Programs

- In the 18-19 year, just three years after its launch, the International Relations major has remained strong with 69 declared majors and 5 minors.
- The B.A. in Labor Studies continues its impressive trajectory of growth. In its third year, the program had 21 majors, 6 minors, and an additional 4 students in its related Certificate Program.
- The Cinema Studies Minor, which launched in 2016, has continued to grow. During the 2018-2019 year, it enrolled 36 minors, compared to 27 minors last year, after starting off with 10 in September 2016. Eight students graduated with a minor in Cinema Studies in 2018-19. The program’s Internship Committee made significant progress in setting up internship opportunities for students both on and off campus (at the University Gallery, in the new dorms, and at the Boston Society of Film Critics). The program hosted or co-hosted 14 events on and off-campus, offered two awards for exceptional student work in creative and critical film studies, and sponsored two active student film clubs. It further developed its resources, including building its film library and outfitting spaces suitable for teaching film courses. As a sign of its momentum and continued growth as a program, it has vetted and submitted for review to the Dean's Council a stage one proposal for a cinema studies major.
- The interdisciplinary Human Rights program, housed in the Department of Women’s and Gender Studies, has around 30 declared minors. The team-taught large enrollment introductory course is as popular as ever and continues to be the gateway course to the minor. Faculty within this program have also collaborated in advancing university efforts relevant to human rights. During the 18-19 year, they published a co-edited volume, Interdisciplinary Approaches to Human Rights: History, Politics, Practice (Rajini Srikanth & Elora Halim Chowdhury, editors, Routledge, 2019). This volume tells the story of how the human rights working group on our campus envisioned, mobilized and created the minor in human rights housed in the department of Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies. The 19 chapters are all from UMass Boston authors spanning faculty, graduate and undergraduate students, featuring the rich crossdisciplinary collaborations of our human rights working group.

2. *“Smart” expansion of graduate programs in carefully selected niches with high demand and in consonance with the existing availability of faculty resources.

Graduate programs potentially located in CLA that were approved by faculty council in the spring of 2018 but remain frozen in the Provost’s office, include the MA in Public Anthropology, the Public Health programs, and the Social Work programs that have large MA components.

Our newest graduate programs are the Transnational, Cultural and Community Studies, recently renamed Critical Ethnic and Community Studies (CECS), MA and the PhD in Applied Linguistics. CECS enrolled 7 students during its 3rd year of operation, following 12 in year 2 and 6 in year 1. The Ph.D. in Applied Linguistics enrolled 10 students during its second year following 4 in year 1.

3. *Undergraduate and Graduate Program Proposals to be Reviewed in the 2019-2020 Year

- The proposed Interdisciplinary Food Studies Minor will provide a multifaceted understanding of food’s central place in human experience through study of specific histories, ecosystems, and cultures, creating productive bridges between the humanities, sciences and management fields.
- The proposed Classical Languages Post-Baccalaureate Certificate will provide students with the courses needed to enter graduate programs in the Classics or Latin. This will be the first program in New England and the 11th in the United States.
- The proposed Latin and Classical Humanities Post-Baccalaureate Certificate Program will provide students with the courses needed to enter programs in Medieval or Renaissance Studies, or to teach Latin.
- The proposed Public History Certificate Program within the History MA Program will prepare students to become professional public historians and will provide students with practical experience in the field, as well as opportunities to collaborate on civically-engaged projects.

B. Enriching Academic Programs (and academic research)

We are well into the first year of the $515K, three-year grant from the Andrew Mellon Foundation and have made substantial progress in several areas. Seven new courses have already been developed employing best practices in student-engaged learning. Five of these courses will be offered for the first time in the Fall 2019 semester. In addition, seventeen additional new courses have already been identified and their faculty sponsors will be developing them in workshops over the next year so that some can get through governance in time to be offered Spring 2020 and the rest the following year. The first Careers in Humanities courses are being developed now and will be offered as one credit courses during the Fall 2019 semester. Several small grants have been given to individual instructors to enable their classes to attend various cultural events in Boston to supplement their curriculum. Early evaluations of these have been overwhelmingly positive in terms of their impact on students and their attitudes toward the humanities. These mini-grants will continue next year.

We now have space for the “Humanities Incubator” in the library and are in the process of acquiring furniture and needed instructional equipment. In addition to expanding on successful first-year courses in CLA-First! focused on the city of Boston, the Incubator aims to develop an upper-level curriculum that helps students experience—through site visits, hands-on research, and museum and library partnerships—the dynamic creativity, analytical thinking, and cultural engagement central to the humanities. The Incubator will offer a site for classes as well as seminars, student interchanges, and other activities focused around the humanities. We will be working with the CLA Center for the Study of Humanities, Culture, and Society to integrate their activities with this new Incubator. In addition, the grant has enabled enhanced mentoring support for undergraduate research and writing in the humanities. We are also in the process of hiring a Production Manager for the Performing Arts Department who will allow us to begin using the facilities more for community events and interactions with cultural events in Boston. The Mellon Grant is paying for the first year of this hire.

The program’s ultimate goal is to stimulate academic engagement that will increase our undergraduates’ persistence, degree completion, and interest in post-graduate education.

C. Supporting and Expanding Academic Research

1. Supporting leadership and management of scholarly publications.

Thirty CLA Faculty serve as editors for scholarly journals. Examples of the diversity of content include:

- The prestigious Composition Studies journal is in the process of being transferred to UMass Boston from the University of Connecticut. Professor Matthew Davis of the English Department has been named as the editor of the journal.
- The History and English Departments continue to jointly manage the editorship of the New England Quarterly, a quarterly journal of New England History and Literature.
- Professor Susan Tomlinson of the English Department is senior editor of the prestigious Legacy: A Journal of American Women Writers.
- Professor Lloyd Schwartz of the English Department is senior editor for New York Arts and contributes reviews of classical music and the arts.
- Professor Heidi Levitt of the Psychology Department is the editor of Qualitative Psychology, a journal focused on qualitative methodologies in Psychology.
- Professor Maria Brinker of the Philosophy Department serves as the editor of Phenomenology and the Cognitive Sciences.

2. Supporting Centers and Institutes

The College of Liberal Arts has nine Centers that are interdisciplinary research organizations that bring faculty and students together from across the university to pursue research, teaching, and service on broad scholarly and social topics.

- Applied Ethics Center
- Center for Evidence-based Mentoring
- Center for Portuguese Language - Instituto Camões
- Center for the Study of Humanities, Culture, and Society
- Center for World Languages and Cultures
- Consortium on Gender, Security, and Human Rights
- Fiske Center for Archaeological Research
- Labor Resource Center
- The Spanish Resource Center

We highlight three of the centers below:

- The Applied Ethics Center (AEC) continued its robust activity. This year the AEC focused on two projects. The first is called “Artificial Intelligence and Experience” (AIEX) and explores the ways in which the increasing prevalence of Machine Learning technology is challenging what we take to be stable and valuable aspects of human nature. The AIEX project, supported by a generous anonymous gift, featured eight public lectures from leading scholars, an article competition for CLA faculty, and a one day conference that featured leading and emerging scholars writing on the topic. The project will continue with a similar format next year. The Center’s second project, “The Ethics of Public Memory,” introduced high school students to the moral and political questions involved in the debate around Confederate monuments and other controversial memorials around the country. This project was funded by Mass Humanities. The Center created a curriculum that was delivered to around 80 students. In addition to creating that curriculum, the Center set up a formal debate for the students (on renaming Faneuil Hall), a scholarly panel (on the role of museum curators in addressing past injustices), an essay competition (also on renaming Faneuil Hall) and a visit to the EMK Institute where students debate a bill calling to remove Confederate memorials from the US Capitol.
- AY 2018-2019 was a year of transition for the Andrew Fiske Memorial Center for Archaeological Research. Two of their longest running National Science Foundation supported projects in Iceland (Viking Colonization) and New Mexico (Spanish/Pueblo Interaction during Colonization) are nearing completion. There are plans to continue work in both areas, but this year saw steady work towards the completion of reports and scholarly products stemming from both projects. Work also continues on the Plymouth 400 project that is funded by a National Endowment for Humanities Collaborative Grant. This was augmented this past year by a new NEH grant Digitizing Plimoth Plantation’s 17th-Century Historical Archaeology Collections, that will digitize collections from previously excavated 17th-century archaeological sites in the Plymouth area. Work also began on a newly funded project that involves the Inventory and Monitoring of Endangered Archeological Sites at Great Island and Great Beach Hill, Cape Cod National Seashore, Wellfleet, Massachusetts. This project uses 3-dimensional photography and geophysical testing to measure beach erosion in the National Seashore that is impacting archaeological sites. During this last academic year, the Fiske Center partnered with the Anthropology Department to offer summer undergraduate research fellowships. This was designed to address the Chancellor's undergraduate retention and success goals by reducing financial barriers and encouraging participation in immersive summer research courses. Through this initiative the Center directly supported six undergraduates with summer awards of $1750 per student.

- The Center for the Study of Humanities, Culture, and Society organizes a range of events and conversations on campus each year that invite scholars, artists, writers, and activists to share emerging critical and creative work focused around an annual theme. This year, the year-long theme was “incarceration,” with events addressing the issue from a range of perspectives (academic, personal, cultural, political). The events included a speaker series and an exhibit in the Harbor Art Gallery. New directors were appointed to the Center for the next year. Under the new co-directorship of Professors Sari Edelstein (English) and Aaron Lecklider (American Studies), the Center's 2019-2020 events will be anchored in the theme of “Resources,” a concern with particular urgency in relation to public education, wealth inequality, and ecological devastation, among other areas. The Center will launch its events with a talk by Professor Christopher Newfield, an established expert on the humanities in public universities, who will also facilitate a workshop on public-facing advocacy for the humanities and provide tools for administrators and workers in government relations on campus. With a new steering committee, and a refreshed web presence, the Center aims to foreground the central role of the humanities for scholars, students, staff, and administrators at UMass Boston.

Goal 3: Improve the learning, teaching and working environment through increasing accessibility, space, faculty development, and appropriate departmental staffing

A. Faculty Development - Teaching

We support teaching by encouraging our faculty to participate in workshops and specialized training offered through both CIT and the Office of Faculty Development. We also provide our faculty with support in the form of course load reductions when the faculty serve in roles as CIT and OFD Directors. Over the last several years, we have actively incentivized our faculty to offer large enrollment courses through supporting specific training and providing an accrual system for earned course load reductions. Table 1 on the following page summarizes the last few years of our large enrollment offerings.

Table 1. Large Enrollment (70+ students) Offerings and Enrollments

	# of CLA LE sections	Enrollments in LE sections
Fall 15	45	4589
Spr 16	48	4280
Fall 16	49	4550
Spr 17	44	4294
Fall 17	46	4749
Spr 18	45	4494
Fall 18	46	4719
Spr 19	45	4305

B. Faculty Development – Scholarship

Our college has supported faculty scholarship through competitively-awarded Dean’s Supplemental Travel and Dean’s Research Funds, and through Discretionary funds. The FSU provides each faculty member with $1000 to support travel. During the 2018-2019 year, Dean’s Supplemental Travel Funds were awarded to 73 faculty members in order to support the costs of traveling to present papers at conferences. The Dean’s Research Fund made awards of up to $5000 to support research projects conducted by 33 faculty or collaborative laboratories. Discretionary funds were used to support speaker series, seminars and workshops hosted by CLA faculty.

At a more general level, our college supported scholarship by providing grant administration staff to the Psychology, Sociology, and Anthropology departments, administrative support to the CLA Mentoring Center, and the CLA Grant Administrator who serves the other CLA departments. The CLA Grant Administrator assisted faculty and graduate students in finding public and private sources of grant funding for the humanities and the arts, as well as in the submission of applications, and post-award management of external funds.

C. Mentoring

This year, the college made great strides in enhancing and improving mentoring initiatives and programs across departments for junior faculty. A mentoring task force headed by Professors Susan Gauss and Pratima Prasad presented their recommendations to the CLA Chairs group in the Fall with the objective of encouraging departments to develop mentoring plans with structures of accountability built into them. CLA is the only college on campus engaged in the development of systematic mentoring plans for all departments. Department Chairs have been tasked with completing their plans by Fall 2019.

D. Staffing

Due to reduced resources and budget constraints, we have been limited in our efforts to provide much needed staffing support to our departments. We were successful in creating a joint Administrative Assistant position to be shared between Critical and Ethnic and Community Services and Human Services. In addition, the grant manager position in Psychology was upgraded.

Goal 4: Encourage and foster community engaged scholarship and teaching through outreach to the community

A. Community-engaged scholarship and teaching

- The Classics and Religious Studies Department was very active in its community-engaged programming. Several Classics faculty members shared their scholarship and teaching through presentations with the students and teaching communities of Boston-area schools. Professor Jacqueline Carlon offered two sessions at the Junior Classical League meeting at Boston University. She has been running a “dual enrollment” program that offers high school students an opportunity to get college credit in a high school Latin class as an alternative to the Advanced Placement exam, and is currently expanding from six to ten schools. Finally, the department continued to offer the popular Conventiculum Bostoniense, a full-immersion residential experience, designed for those with at least an intermediate-level background in Latin who want to gain some ability to communicate ex-tempore in correct Latin.
- Professor Amy Den Ouden of the Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Department was awarded an Andrew W. Mellon Tribal Digital Knowledge Sharing Fellowship (2019-2020) at the American Philosophical Society, for her work with the Herring Pond Wampanoag Tribe of Plymouth MA. She has been doing pro bono research, writing and consulting for the Herring Pond Wampanoag Tribe since 2016; this community-engaged work has been incorporated into several of her classes.
- Professor Cedric Woods of Critical Ethnic and Community Studies and the Institute for New England Native American Studies received a contract to build upon existing work by the MA Bureau of Substance Abuse Services in developing and delivering culturally appropriate resources for MA Native Communities. This work includes close partnerships with faculty from the College of Nursing and Health Sciences, Sociology, and GLPP. He is also continuing a project to recruit and train Native teachers in Early Childhood Education in partnership with the College of Ed faculty and staff.
- Over the course of the Spring 2019 semester, the students in Professor Sommer Forrester’s MUSIC 480 class had the opportunity to participate in the Practitioner-Scholars Program (Office of Community Partnerships in collaboration with eLearning and funded through the Mellon Grant). Through our partnership with the Youth and Family Enrichment Services (YoFES), UMB students taught in the YoFES Community Music program on the weekends. YoFES is a not-for-profit organization that serves the Haitian community in Boston.
- The Department of Latin American and Iberian Studies organized several activities that engaged students with the histories and challenges of immigrant communities. Professor Susana Domingo Amestoy, thanks to a Mellon Grant for course enhancement, invited

Patricia Montes, the executive director of Centro Presente (one of the longest standing immigrant-led immigration rights organizations in Massachusetts) into her LAT AM 360. In SPAN 200G, taught by Professor Anna Mester, students interviewed and collected oral histories of immigration from community members of Greater Boston. Professor Susan Gauss presented at a workshop for teachers in the Albany, NY on the topic of Migrations in the Americas, sponsored by the Arthur Vining Davis Foundation and the University of Virginia's Center for Liberal Arts.

- As previously mentioned, the Applied Ethics Center's monuments project, funded by Mass Humanities, engaged Boston and Cambridge high school students in the debate around Confederate monuments and other controversial memorials around the country. In addition, the Center set up a formal debate for the students, a scholarly panel, an essay competition, and a visit to the EMK Institute where students debated a bill calling to remove Confederate memorials from the US Capitol.
- The Anthropology Department was very active in community-engaged projects. Professor Stephen Silliman led the Eastern Pequot Archaeological Field School in July 2018 for its 11th iteration in the 16-year duration of the collaboration project with the Eastern Pequot Tribal Nation in North Stonington, Connecticut. Associate Professor Ping-Ann Addo expanded her longstanding work on Boston's Caribbean immigrant communities, especially those in Roxbury and Dorchester, and their expression of festival aesthetics and masquerade performance in the city by traveling to Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, in Spring 2018 for community-based ethnographic work. Dr. David Landon and Dr. Christa Beranek of the Fiske Center led another field season of the Plymouth 400 archaeological and heritage project in Plymouth, Massachusetts, in May and June 2019. This project involves many stakeholders in the area, including the Mashpee Wampanoag, local historical societies and descendent groups, Plymouth town residents, and more.
- In March 2019, students enrolled in The Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Department's Advanced Topics in Human Rights participated in the 63rd session of the United Nations Commission of the Status of Women. The priority theme for 2019 was "Social protection systems, access to public services and sustainable infrastructure for gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls."
- Throughout the year, faculty and students in the Department of Psychology were quite active in community-engaged projects. Students working under Dr. Vivian Ciaramitaro provided public science outreach through conducting experiments and educating the general public on science at the Living Laboratory, Museum of Science Boston. Since 2014, students have each worked 3 hours per week, throughout the year. This academic year alone, they gathered data from 128 children (ages 5-18) and 196 adults, and educated roughly 450 museum patrons. Under the direction of Dr. Tracey Rogers and Susy Gallor, UMB-UR-BEST (<https://www.umb.edu/umburbest>), the Clinical Psychology Doctoral Program mental health promotion service conducted by doctoral students, provided workshops to over 1000 university community participants. For these activities, the program received the Beacon Group Service Award at the Beacon Leadership Awards Ceremony. Under the direction of Dr. Susan Zup, members of the department's Neuroscience Club provided lectures about the brain to middle and high school students in the Dorchester community.

B. Outreach: Networking, Events and Communication of the CLA Brand

1. Social Media:

In an effort to serve better our students, faculty, and the community, we have three main social media accounts on which we share pertinent news and information about the college. We have a Twitter feed (n=384), a Facebook page (n=563), and an Instagram account (n=967) and we frequently use these platforms to share information such as: open courses; cancelled courses; university and college events; educational articles; community events; research opportunities; grant opportunities; and student, faculty, and alumni awards and achievements. It is our goal to continue to encourage students to follow us on social media so that we can provide them with as much information as possible in the most direct way possible. In order to do this, we will continue to encourage departments to share our pages with their faculty and students, as well as continue to self-promote within the College and at special events.

2. Web:

Departments are taking a more active role in maintaining their web pages and ensuring that their content is the most up-to-date information that they have.

3. Events:

- CLA Research Week: Our signature event in April enjoyed wide participation from a variety of Social Science and Humanities Departments during the highlight, the posters session. We had a record number of 24 student posters, with representation from ten departments. Notably, and in a contrast with previous years, Humanities poster topics (in English, Classics, and Art History, for instance), made a very good showing alongside posters in Psychology, Sociology, Economics. Within the Social Sciences as well, the Communication Department, which was previously unrepresented at this event, made a strong showing. Subjects presented by students included: Facial Attractiveness and Perceived Bias, Adolescent Perspectives in Irish Fiction, Representation of Jealousy in Teen Programming, Art During Japanese Imperialism, Voodoo as a Source of Liberation for Black Women, and the Relationship Between Transportation Grants and Residential Displacement. Three students in Psychology, Communication, and English respectively shared the “Best Poster” prize.
- Departmental Programs on Undergraduate Research: In addition to the college-wide poster event, the Dean’s office sponsored programming featuring undergraduate research in individual departments. The Departments of Psychology, Art, Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, and English organized research events.
- CLA Graduate Student Social: An evening dinner event was held to bring together graduate students across all CLA Programs. This was desired by the Graduate Program Directors as a means of creating a greater sense of community among our graduate students, and a better understanding of program emphases across programs. Recognition of clusters of programs with related interests has led to the decision to provide additional opportunities of this type in the coming year.

Goal 5: Seek out Opportunities for Revenue Generation

The CLA Grant Administrator and those working for the Anthropology, Psychology, and Sociology Departments provided pre- and post-award support for the faculty and graduate students in all departments in CLA. Based on reports from these units, during the 18-19 annual year, more than 30 proposals were submitted, and 49 awards were managed from federal, state, and private foundation sources. These awards generate over $12 million across the period of funding, and provided $4 million during the 18-19 year. This funding ranks CLA in third position across colleges with respect to the generation of revenue through external grant funding. External-funding is distributed across the multiple units of CLA as shown in the figure below. As shown in Figure 1 below, the preponderance of our funding is generated by faculty in the Social Sciences (shown in Blue), Centers provide significant self-support, and the Humanities have been quite successful in achieving funding. The success of Humanities departments (light green) is further buttressed by that fact that grants in the CLA Dean’s Office (dark green) are for the support of the Humanities.

Section II:

MAJOR ACHIEVEMENTS

A. CLA Faculty Recruitment

Despite budgetary limitations, CLA has been successful in recruiting faculty with robust and diverse research interests in the social sciences and the humanities. The university budget difficulties resulted in a hiatus (hopefully quite temporary) in the large number of replacement hires. The following is a summary of the number of TT hires made in the past four academic years:

- AY 2015-16: 9 replacement hires, 10 new hires, and 3 failed searches
- AY 2016-17: 10 replacement hires
- AY 2017-18 :10 replacement hires
- AY 2018-19: 5 replacement hires

B. CLA Faculty Scholarship

CLA faculty continued robust scholarly production in AY17-18. The college's faculty collectively published 17 books, 258 journal articles, 80 book chapters, 333 creative works, 5 edited books, and 5 regularly published columns. Production of journal articles, book chapters, and creative works increased when compared to the previous year, while production in all other categories remained stable. See Appendix 4 for full details.

C. Personnel Milestones

15 CLA faculty achieved tenure and 2 were hired with tenure. 6 CLA faculty were promoted to Full Professor and the College has recommended the promotion of 12 to Senior Lecturer and is awaiting responses from the Provost.

D. College Milestones – Special Initiatives

- The Undergraduate Research Portfolio Program is in its third year. This year alone, we recruited 20 new students.
- For the past several years, CLA Dean's office representatives have been involved in the Electronic One Form project, which explored an online approach to streamlining governance paperwork. This year, the University purchased Curriculog, the curriculum management software from DIGARC, which has been adopted by the Lowell and Dartmouth campuses. In AY 18-19, a university-wide committee worked towards adopting this state of the art software for UMB. Transforming the University's age-old paper-based governance structure into a virtual format was an arduous task, involving weekly meetings both with stakeholders within UMB and with the employees of DIGARC. Louise Putnam of the CLA Dean's office was a key figure and leader in this process: she created detailed course governance flow charts that provided the foundation for the project, and worked closely with the Registrar's office and the Provost's office at all stages of the process. Curriculog is slated for launch in Fall 2019.

- The Foley Hoag Scholars program was modeled after the successful State Street Scholars program, developing a cohort of participants year after year. Our second fellow, Emily Curran, collaborated on the following for the FH Foundation: Impact Analysis, Administrative Manual, Apprentice Learning visit scripts, scheduled 2019 Speaker series, and the Annual Report. The College recruited our next fellow, Jamie McCaughey, who is ready to begin come September.

E. CLA Success in Teaching, Research and all Creative Inquiry

As reported in prior sections, CLA programs excel in teaching and scholarly activities. Special recognitions in these areas and in the creative arts during the 2018-2019 year included:

- Professor Karen Suyemoto, Department of Psychology, received the Chancellor’s Award for Distinguished Teaching;
- Professor Randy Albelda, Department of Economics, received the Chancellor’s Award for Distinguished Service;
- Professor Sana Haroon, Department of History, received the Online Innovation Teaching Award from the University Conference on Teaching, Learning and Technology;
- Professor Nickki Dawes, Department of Psychology, received the Community-Engaged Innovation Teaching Award from the University Conference on Teaching, Learning and Technology;
- Professor Tahirah Abdullah received the university-wide Manning Award for Excellence in Teaching;
- Professor Lillian Bertram, Department of English, received Honorable Mention for this year’s Face-to Face Innovation Teaching Award from the University Conference on Teaching, Learning and Technology;
- NPR’s Goats and Soda Desk chose “The Managed Body: Developing Girls and Menstrual Health in the Global South” by Professor Chris Bobel, Department of Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, as 1 of 5 books from around the world to read in honor of World Book Day;
- The Society for Research in Child Development chose Professor Ed Tronick, Department of Psychology, as the recipient of the SRCD Distinguished Scientific Contributions to Child Development Award;
- Professor Paul Watanabe, Department of Political Science, received a Lifetime Achievement Award from the American Political Science Association’s Asian Pacific American Caucus;
- Professor of English Lloyd Schwartz was awarded a prestigious 2019 Guggenheim Fellowship for his contributions in poetry.
- “Outsourced Children: Orphanage Care and Adoption in Globalizing China” authored by Professor Leslie Wang, Department of Sociology, received two awards from the American Sociological Association (ASA) – an Honorable Mention for the Goode Book Award, from the ASA's Family Section, and the Outstanding Scholarly Contribution Award from the ASA's Children and Youth Section;

- “Travesty Generator” by Professor Lillian-Yvonne Bertram, Department of English, won the Noemi Press Prize for Poetry, and was also a finalist for the National Poetry Series;
- Professor Hugh O’Connell, Department of English, received the Mary Bray Kay Award from the Science Fiction Research Association;
- Professor Aaron Lecklider, American Studies Department, was selected as the historian for the Edward M. Kennedy Institute's Seat at the Table Project, an exhibit that will display commissioned pieces by artists responding to Shirley Chisholm's famous line, "if they don't give you a seat at the table, bring a folding chair";
- The Psychology of Women Quarterly celebrated 50 years since Stonewall and Pride Month by offering a special section of the of its journal on Professor Heidi Levitt’s theory of LGBTQ + gender. Professor Levitt is from the Department of Psychology;
- Professor Tiffany Donaldson, Department of Psychology, was accepted into the inaugural Northeast Faculty Leadership Program: Faculty Success through Diversity (NFLP) funded by the Sloan Foundation;
- Professor Karen Suyemoto, Department of Psychology, received a Fulbright Award to study ethnic and race relations in Sweden;
- Professor David Pantalone, Department of Psychology, received the Mentorship Award from the Behavioral Medicine & Integrated Primary Care Special Interest Group of the Association for Behavioral and Cognitive Therapies;
- The Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival (KCACTF) selected two actors (Kelsey Ferdinand and Lorraine Kanyike) and two designers (Caroline Clancy and Li Vailette) from this Spring’s production of By the Way, Meet Vera Stark, for next year’s festival;
- From February 11 to June 2, 2019, the McMullen Museum of Art at Boston College presented Eaglemania: Collecting Japanese Art in Gilded Age America, a fabulous exhibition curated by McMullen Museum Assistant Director Diana Larsen and Professor Victoria Weston, Department of Art.

Section III:

STRENGTHS AND WEAKNESSES

A. Strengths:

- 19 dedicated Departmental Chairpersons and 13 Graduate Program Directors all of whom are active in their scholarly fields, their classrooms, and in college administration. CLA faculty also perform the lion’s share of teaching, scholarship, and service across the University.
- CLA has taken the lead in a number of important campus initiatives related directly to our strategic goals, including expanding the opportunities for our students and faculty to engage in research activities, promoting undergraduate research, providing increased technical support in communications, grant submissions, TA training, teaching LE courses, and the Curriculog project.

B. Weaknesses:

- Creative Inquiry: faculty are feeling hamstrung by the inability to innovate in their programs due to slowdowns in governance and administrative churn.
- In addition to an already existing space crunch on campus, CLA faculty and staff have borne the brunt of several unexpected and arbitrary space reallocations. These have been a challenge for morale and productivity.
- Fundraising: the college in collaboration with advancement should be bringing in more gifts of any amount.

Section IV:

UNIT GOALS FOR 2019-20 AND RELATIONSHIP TO STRATEGIC PLAN

CLA's goals for next year are directly related to our five year strategic plan as outlined above. We will continue to work on expanding our student retention rates and the percentage of students who graduate in four years through our CLA FIRST!, SophoMORE, and Majors Advising programs. We hope to build on our success in undergraduate research by spreading this to more departments in CLA and involving more of our students. Related goals are to expand recruitment and support for graduate students. A key goal will also be to continue to expand revenue generation through more successful grant applications and broader contact with alumni and donors. We also hope to continue to strengthen our departments through successful top notch faculty hires to the extent allowed by the current budget challenges.

Section V:

ASPIRATIONAL PEERS

We selected Wayne State University as our aspirational peer because it is a part of the Urban Coalition and is a public urban research university with a social justice mission serving largely minority first generation college students. Wayne State is larger than UMass Boston, has 13 unions, and remains an innovator with student access though the school is largely commuter based in the heart of downtown Detroit. Wayne State is the 7th largest employer in the area. Wayne State has 13 colleges including a School of Medicine, School of Social Work, a Law School, the College of Education and Human Development, College of Fine and Performing Arts, School of Engineering, Illych School of Business, a School of Nursing, College of Pharmacy and Health, School of Informational Sciences, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Graduate School. Students come from every state and 60 countries and 48% are minority students. Their faculty’s significant revenue generation and notable expertise being in the top 100 Universities according to the 2018 NSF for R&D Expenditures, ranking above University of Massachusetts at Amherst. Wayne State brings in approximately $224 million in grant money a year while UMass Boston brings in approximately $50 million from a relatively narrow group of academic units.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) is used as our aspirational peer as it includes the humanities, social science, physical and life science, and a variety of interdisciplinary programs including public health and environmental studies. We have also broken down R&D data by humanities and social sciences only. It is interesting that both Wayne’s CLAS and UMBs CLA have the same number of Department units that serve differing numbers of students, majors, and faculties. The Graduate School at Wayne State also assures the highly regarded graduate programs and students that there are commensurate services at the graduate level as the undergraduate level. Graduate students are recognized as collaborators, valued resources, peers, and educators: an aspirant goal for UMass Boston on which much headway has begun. As shown in Table 2 below, despite the smaller numbers of faculty in CLA, we outperform Wayne State in generating external research funds.

Table 2: Aspirational Peer and UMass Boston Information

Wayne State University	UMass Boston

CLA First!, SophoMORE, and First-Year Initiatives

2018-2019 Annual Report

As we complete our 9th year, we continue to learn from each of the previous years, in order to grow and continuously improve upon all of our programs. Our aim is to provide access to student success programming that enhances the learning environment for all of our CLA students.

Program Activities 2018-2019

As part of the intensive and supportive opportunities available to the cohorts, the following initiatives and resources began or continued to be offered to the group over the academic year.

CLA First! program

Start Smart! series: Our co-curricular programming, called Start Smart sessions, were offered regularly, and focus on introducing campus resources, academic skills, as well as providing social opportunities for community building. Topics included welcome sessions each semester; tutoring information; time management and effective use of academic planners; career and resume workshops; a student panel on major and minor exploration, as well as peer mentor led sessions. We continue to partner with the UMB-UR-BEST program from the Psychology Department, and offered workshops on topics including self-care, identity development, and values exploration. We continued to offer several Start Smart sessions each semester to the general population of newly-enrolled CLA students. Building off the previous year, we continued to align our social opportunities to connect further with the campus community, including attending UMass Boston athletics events, select Performing Arts Department's productions, as well as events sponsored by the Office of Student Leadership and Community Engagement and Residence Life. CLA First! was able to support peers through this engagement and will continue to use this concept in future semesters.

Student advising commitment: Academic Advising continues to be a crucial component of the CLA First! program; we embed advising curriculum in to our Start Smart programming and aim to make advising a regular (not only for pre-registration course advising) and accessible support for students. We met with all enrolled CLA First! and SophoMORE students during the fall and spring, and also met with over 40% of the continuing students from our programs (many connected with their faculty advisor as well). In addition to professional advising, we continued to offer our Peer Advising program, cross-training CLA First! Senior Peer Mentors to assist students with a range of advising questions. Peer Mentors co-presented our fall 2018 advising and registration workshops alongside professional academic advisors. We offered 7 workshops and all CLA First! students in the 2018-2019 cohort attended a workshop prior to scheduling a one-on-one advising appointment with their professional advisor. In this interactive workshop, students follow along and learn the technological aspects related to understanding degree requirements in a classroom setting, allowing for more time to have in-depth conversations in one-on-one advising meetings. In the spring 2019 semester, with a full professional staff we were able to add drop-in advising hours Tuesday through Friday, for 2 hours each day. In addition, we continued to use our online calendar system, which sends automatic reminders via text and via email. Based on data from our online scheduling system, from September 2018 through June 2019, there were over 1,100 advising appointments (excluding drop-in advising). We are in the early stages of using the online scheduling system to also send a follow-up message after each appointment for the purpose of collecting feedback from students via a short survey.

Peer Mentors: Six upper-class Peer Mentors worked with the CLA First! program this year, and were each assigned members of the cohort with whom to maintain contact. Mentors and professional staff meet weekly for a staff meeting to check in, share ideas, and also discuss campus-wide events and activities. Our team was well-connected and held additional positions on campus, including Resident Assistant, Orientation Leader, as well as leadership positions in various student clubs and organizations. Peer mentors continued to hold (and remind their mentees of weekly office hours and participate in all aspects (from coordination to presentation) with Start Smart! and social programming. In addition, two mentors were hired to work specifically with the CLA SophoMORE cohort. Three Senior Peer Mentors offered additional assistance, including supporting Peer Mentors, creating a bi-weekly calendar of campus-wide events, and as previously mentioned the Peer Advising program. Prior to the start of the academic year there was individual training for the group, as well as collaborative training for mentors across campus first-year success opportunities. The position for CLA Peer Mentors was advertised for 2019-2020, and a total of 12 mentors will be joining us for the next academic year.

CLA First! Facebook page; Twitter account; Instagram account and Google shared drive: During orientation when students join the CLA First! program, we encouraged students to follow our Facebook, Twitter and Instagram. The CLA First! Peer Mentor team has a shared responsibility of creating social media campaigns, regularly posting on each of our social media accounts, and connecting with social media accounts from other University programs, and student groups. CLA First! and SophoMORE continues to share resources electronically through Google drive; mentors and staff are then able to quickly share resources if a student is unable to attend a workshop or would like to follow-up.

Social and service opportunities: We continued to partner with the Office of Student Leadership and Community Engagement, including participating in a first-year service day in late September, where members of CLA First!, SophoMORE, the First-Year Leadership Institute, and other learning communities participated at service sites around the city. Several of our students and Peer Mentors participated in Beacon Voyages for Service trips, and a staff member served as a trip advisor in spring 2019.

CLA representation: Students were asked to participate in Welcome Day and Accepted Student Day as student speakers and representatives of CLA First!

CLA SophoMORE program

Program model and changes: In collaboration with the English department, the SophoMORE program completed a third year as an academic course and it's first year expanding to two sections, which included roughly twenty-five students in each. The two sections of the Intermediate Seminar, offered in the fall, were taught by Christopher Craig and David McNamara from the English Department. Workshops were conducted most Friday's by Oceana Elia-Hintsa, Academic Advisor for CLA SophoMORE, and other CLA First! staff and Peer Mentors helped in the facilitation of these workshops.

As with previous years, the central focus of the class was to help students talk about and negotiate the tensions that exist in challenges that may arise from pursuing an education and/or finding a job or career. There was a specific focus on this central theme within American society. The course introduces the challenges and the workshops were designed to suggest ideas, resources, and tools for how to confront some of the challenges presented. The goal was to introduce students to more complex ideas in their education and personal lives and to encourage them to explore such questions as: "Who am I?," and "What is important to me?" One program aim is to provide students with some apparatus for making decisions on their own, to help them see how what they learn in class can connect to what they experience in life, and to reassure that it is "okay" to not have all of the answers. Through reading and writing assignments and co-curricular activities students explored their academic, professional, and personal journeys and goals. Professional writing was highlighted, as students prepared and revised resumes, professional emails, and draft cover letters. Students were also required to reflect on the process of preparing for their job shadows and partake in the job shadow experience. In the spring semester students enrolled in a 1-credit course, where they presented and reflected on their job shadow experiences, further developed presentation skills and cover letter writing, and observed presentations focusing on financial aid planning, writing proficiency writing, career development, and utilizing university resources.

Programming efforts: Programming efforts were focused on a holistic approach of the sophomore experience from academic and intellectual to social and cultural aspects of the student experience. Highlighted topics included undergraduate research, internships, preparation for the Writing Proficiency requirement, cultural proficiency, financial aid literacy, networking and interview skills, and more in depth connection with the Office of Career Services and Internships. There was also much emphasis on being a part of a community that can provide support and resources for success.

Job Shadow: Through continued support from and in partnership with the Office of Career Services and Internships and University Advancement, students in CLA Sophomore were offered the opportunity to shadow a professional in an area of their career interest.

Job Shadow Employers: There were 24 participating employers (several returned from previous years). The host locations involved many UMass Boston departments and other UMass institutions including, UMass Boston Creative Services, UMass Boston Athletic Communications, UMass Boston U-ACCESS, Success Boston, Asian American Student Success Program, and UMass Medical School. We were also able to draw on our CLA First! alumni network to connect recent graduates with current students for this year's job shadow. Many surrounding Universities, High Schools, and Elementary schools participated as host locations including, Northeastern University, Emmanuel College, Framingham High School, Hingham High School, Quincy High School, St. John Paul II Catholic Academy, Boston Collegiate Charter School, and Chelsea Public Schools.

Host locations also included, Boston Housing Authority Language Access Division Center for Community Engagement, South Shore Mental Health, Probation Department Charlestown Municipal Court, MHM/FHS Court Clinic, Hyde Square Task Force, Swissnex Boston, Life is Good, Analog Devices, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, and The Providence Journal. In addition, we have developed several partnerships with employers who have offered to serve as future job-shadow hosts.

Job Shadow Students: The 46 students in the program all participated in preparatory workshops, and 38 students completed their job shadow by the close of the spring semester. 8 students completed an alternative option to explore their career and educational interests, working closely with the CLA Sophomore Academic Advisor. One example: a student who worked to apply to an accelerated masters program, including preparation for a meeting with the Graduate Program Director (this student is now enrolled in two graduate courses for fall 2019). A Job Shadow celebration event for student participants was held in late April, and incorporated student speakers and continued networking opportunities.

Program plans: All students worked with the Academic Advisor for CLA Sophomore in completing a plan for finishing their anticipated course of study in their desired time frame. A special emphasis was given to further career and education opportunities and building an individual schedule for success.

Peer Mentors: Two Peer Mentors, along with the Senior Peer Mentors, worked with CLA Sophomore, and maintained contact with student members, and assisted with event development, social media outreach and programming.

Markers for success: This year's cohort had a total of 46 students in the affiliated fall semester Intermediate Seminar course and 97% are expected to be retained to their junior year. There are 44 students registered for fall 2019 classes and 2 are currently in the process of either registering for fall classes or working towards alternative plans for moving forward with their college careers (as of June 20, 2019). The group maintained an average cumulative GPA of 3.26. In spring 2019, 16 students were named to the Dean's List; all students in this year's cohort have a cumulative GPA above a 2.0 at the end of spring 2019. A total of 45 students successfully completed the Intermediate Seminar and 35 students completed the entire two semester program. Three students who did not join CLA SophoMORE for fall were able to join the 1-credit SophoMORE course in the spring.

Assessment: Quantitative and qualitative assessment was conducted in the fall of 2018 and spring of 2019 to capture a more comprehensive picture of the sophomore experience. Fall and spring evaluation was conducted through a discussion based conversation facilitated by Christopher Craig, David McNamara, Oceana Elia-Hintsa, and other CLA First! staff. Important feedback was collected from the participating students on how to expand the program and what other resources would be valuable to the program. Based on this feedback, a particular area of focus going in to 2019-2020 is developing an option for students who wish to research and arrange their job shadow experience more independently.

CLA Course Bundles

Co-curricular programming: Efforts continued to offer opportunities for ALL new students in the College of Liberal Arts to attend. We expanded Start Smart programming to offer more than one session on the same topic at different days/times with the aim of reaching a bigger audience.

Bundle creation: Course bundles continue to allow us to provide students with engaging combinations of courses in their first semester. For fall 2019, we offered theme-based options that combine two introductory courses in the College of Liberal Arts. We continue to collaborate and gather important feedback from CLA Advising and the University Advising Center with the aim of further developing a system that promotes a sense of community, while ensuring that students start on track.

Experiencing Boston option: we are grateful to continue to partner with the English Department, to include Experiencing Boston as an offering, a bundle that combines English 101 and an English First-Year Seminar, which allows students to Explore Boston = Culture City. Designed as particularly enticing for students new to the Boston area and students who are undecided on a major, the course is modeled on the CLA First! combination, which explores the literary and historical aspects of Boston through research, writing, and discussion.

Faculty and Course Offerings

Fall 2018 CLA First!

- Classics 180: Poets, Warriors, and Sages: The Greeks; Jacqueline Carlon
- Communication 100: Introduction to Communication; David Levy
- Economics 101: Introduction to Microeconomics; Jonathan Millman
- English 101: Composition I; Margaret Walsh
- English 101/200: Experiencing Boston; Virginia Karlis, Deborah Budden, Renee Hudson, Kenneth Sunnerberg, Tyler Murphy, David McNamara, Ashley Collins

- Latin American Studies 101 - Latin America: Contemporary Society and Culture; Isabel Gomez

- Psychology 100: Introductory Psychology; Tracy Dunne
- Sociology 101: Introduction to Sociology; Leslie Wang
- Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies 100: Introduction to Women, Gender, and Sexualities in the United States; Carney Maley

Our program continued to work with CLA Department Chairs to identify appropriate courses for first-year to include in the CLA Course Bundles, which were offered as an option to all new first-year students in the College of Liberal Arts. Twenty-one introductory courses were included in the offerings for fall 2018.

Overall 2018-2019 Student Updates

At the start of the fall semester, 112 students were registered for CLA First! cohort classes.

2018-2019 CLA First! Cohort Overview:

- One student declared a new major, outside of the College of Liberal Arts prior to the end of add/drop week and did not continue with CLA First! courses. Two students did not return for the spring semester for personal, health, or financial reasons; and three students withdrew during the spring semester.
- 75 students successfully completed the cohort classes and will receive First Year Seminar waiver, 15 students took the course through the Honors College; the remainder either completed an FYS or are registered for an FYS for fall 2019.
- 90 students are registered for classes for fall 2019 as of June 20, 2019. Of those not yet registered for fall 2019 classes, six students transferred at the close of spring 2019, two students have indicated they are taking a semester off and intend to enroll in spring 2020. The remainder (9 students) have been in contact with CLA First! advisors and intend to enroll in fall 2019 after resolving scheduling matters or holds preventing registration (financial).

- 47 students were named to the Dean’s List in fall 2018; and 45 students in spring 2019
- Average GPA for fall 2018: 3.085; Average Cumulative GPA (fall 2018 & spring 2019): 3.056

Retention and Four-Year Graduation (as of June 21, 2019)

This spring our sixth CLA First! cohort had the potential to graduate.

The numbers below are in comparison to a four-year graduation rate for students (who enter as first-year students) in the College of Liberal Arts that has ranged from 11.7% to 24.9% over the past several years (information from the Office of Institutional Research).

CLA First! graduation rates by cohort years:

CLA First! Cohort	Four-year graduation rate	Five-year graduation rate	Six-year graduation rate

Retention to fall 2019 by CLA First! Cohort:

- 2018-2019     89%     (retained to fall 2019)
- 2017-2018     80%     (retained to fall 2019)
- 2016-2017     65%     (retained to fall 2019)

The overall retention rate for first-time, full-time freshmen students into their sophomore year has ranged from 75 to 80% in the most recent years (Office of Institutional Research), so the CLA First! cohort students for 2018-2019 are being retained at a higher rate. Both retention and graduation rates are indicative that CLA First! students who remain into their sophomore year are retained and then graduate at higher averages than students not in the program.

Recruitment Efforts, Initiatives and Results

Recruitment for the 2019-2020 programs began in February 2019.

- All accepted first-year students in the College of Liberal Arts received information about CLA First! at Welcome Day for Accepted Students in February or April. Estefany Pineda, and Jennifer Magee, both rising juniors who started in the CLA First! program, as well as Cliff Smith, a rising senior who completed both CLA First! and SophoMORE, were the featured student speakers at the most recent Welcome Day events.
- Students were able to speak with the CLA First! Peer Mentor team and were also able to fill out a Pre-Enrollment Interest Form
- Students receive emails about the CLA First! opportunity immediately prior to their scheduled Orientation date, and receive information about the program at Orientation.
- As of June 20, 2019, the CLA First! 2019-2020 is full at a capacity of 135 students.
- Students attending later registration dates will be offer a CLA Course Bundle, and will be encouraged to attend Start Smart programming in their first year.
- CLA SophoMORE continues to be offered to students who have completed the CLA First! program; we featured a CLA SophoMORE student panel for prospective students as part of our Start Smart programming series. In addition, students learned more about the CLA SophoMORE program through email outreach and during advising appointments. To date, 57 students have decided to participate in CLA SophoMORE.

Staffing Updates, Activities, and Professional Development

In January 2019 we welcomed Lauren Haugh to the team as Academic Advisor and Student Success Coordinator. Lauren brings along extensive experience in higher education including academic advising, and student support roles, and has contributed creative new ideas.

Oceana Elia-Hintsa continues to serve on the Beacon Explores committee, a living learning community offered through Residential Life. In addition, she is a hearing officer with the Administrative Review Committee within the Division of Student Affairs. Lauren Haugh serves on the First-Year Success Partners committee and is involved in the Beacon Student Success Fellowship program. Rachel Puopolo serves on the Orientation Planning Committee, has served on recent search committees, and has participated in interviews for Resident Assistants and Orientation Leaders. She has also been involved with the Connected Scholars program as an instructor.

All professional program staff are committed to staying current with professional development, and attend campus-wide Advising Collaborative meetings. In addition, all staff have active NACADA memberships; Lauren attended the NACADA Massachusetts State Drive-In conference this spring.

Changes for the 2019-2020 Program

CLA First! is growing to a capacity of 135 students for the next academic year cohort. We are excited for the year ahead, and are working to revamp programming. A focus will be to continue to collaborate with offices campus-wide to introduce students to resources and to connect them with the greater University community. With the support of the English Department, we decided to implement the “Experiencing Boston” English course as a key course that all students in the CLA First! program must complete because of the large majority of students in the most previous cohort electing to participate in this course.

CLA First! and CLA Course Bundles still co-exist nicely and fill different needs, and each may have a permanent place in the first-year student experience. Reducing the overall number of course bundles by grouping courses in theme-based bundles has streamlined registration. We will continue to assess the bundles throughout this summer orientation and will conduct assessment at the close of fall 2019. In addition to the course component, we are implementing programming specific to the theme-based bundles for the upcoming academic year. An area of exploration is to connect these bundles with the city of Boston, based on the English Department’s “Experiencing Boston” model.

The CLA SophoMORE program continues to offer two sections of the Intermediate Seminar in collaboration with the English Department. Oceana will continue to offer workshops, working with CLA First! staff and Peer Mentors to deliver quality programming. In the year ahead, we are looking to incorporate job shadow research workshops in a computer lab, so the students in the program can learn important skills in how to search for placement hosts they are interested in shadowing. We hope that by including additional workshops for job shadow research experience, we can help the students to take ownership of their goals and dreams and learn valuable skills for the future.

College of Liberal Arts Advising Office Annual Report
Academic Year 2018-2019
Prepared by Ana Frega, Dir. CLA Advising Office

The College of Liberal Arts Advising Office provides professional proactive, holistic, developmental advising to all College of Liberal Arts students with declared majors, with the exception of students served by special programs (e.g. Student Support Services and CLA First!). Providing professional college-based advising for all declared majors in the CLA is aligned with the University's Strategic Plan: "Advising is key to student success. We need to significantly increase the capacity of departments to provide advising for declared majors and recommend hiring college and department-based professional advisors to augment faculty advising in the majors." (Strategic Plan Goal 1, Objective 1) For the purposes of this report, CLA Advising caseloads will be defined as students whose primary college is CLA, who have a declared major, and who do not belong to the special groups mentioned above.

Office Development:

- Office Relocation: Previously, the CLA Advising staff offices were located on two different floors, along three separate hallways. At the beginning of the spring semester, six staff members were relocated, resulting in greater proximity among all staff member offices. While offices are still spread out, without reception staff or location, we have taken this opportunity to create signage, several small waiting areas near clusters of offices, bulletin boards which identify advisors and provide advising information, and shelves stocked with advising-related print materials for students to feel welcome and have an additional way to use wait time productively.
- Office Structure: AY 18-19 is the first year of organizational structure with a director, two associate directors, and an assistant director. This has allowed a clear allocation of responsibilities and systematic communication and collaboration among directors to ensure uninterrupted student service during staff absence or turnover, precise tracking and efficient use of office budget, continuous staff oversight, increased in-house professional development, improved data tracking processes, and guaranteed administrator presence or availability during emergency student situations.
- Referral Process: We established a new departmental email account (CLAAdvisingDirectors@umb.edu), which automatically forwards emails to the individual accounts of director, associate directors, and assistant director who are in the office. This is to compensate for the fact that the CLA Advising Office does not have a reception or main phone line to which advisors can refer students when they are out of the office for more than one work day. Because it is a forwarding account, it does not require monitoring, so does not create additional responsibilities for any individual staff member. In addition, it ensures prompt and consistent reply to students, and it avoids the duplication of efforts which occurred when students would email more than one director or advisor and more than one replied individually. The creation of this account with these precise settings and function took extensive collaboration with two different sections of the IT department.

- In AY 2018-2019, the CLA Advising Office operated with two vacant positions for most of the year: one due to turnover and the other due to a prolonged leave. Nevertheless, we ensured that every student was assigned a CLA advisor, who regularly monitored all of their advisees and provided individualized outreach and intervention. In addition, we were able to maintain one same interim advisor assignment for each of the students in the caseloads of the unoccupied positions, to avoid breaks in service and to ensure consistency in communication.
- Resource Development: In Spring 2018, our office established the Academic Improvement and Resources (AIR) Committee, to survey resources used by CLA advisors, assess the effectiveness of current advising materials (e.g. academic plan, probation advising form, time management tools, study skills development material, decision-making aids, etc.), identify additional material needed (with a focus on academic improvement), and then house these resources on line, for both advisors and students. This team has met throughout AY 18-19, has created a resource inventory, established an office link on the Black Board account of each CLA declared major, and has begun the process of creating materials to house on Black Board and on the CLA Advising website.
- Assessment: We are in our second year of surveying the outcomes of advising appointments. A brief survey is emailed to each student after an advising appointment during the larger part of the semester. The survey is anonymous and not attached to a particular advisor's name. The evolution and results are explained in a later section of this report.
- Professional Development: To support the establishment of residence halls in the University, in the fall, we held a one-day retreat on the topic of working with residential students and parents. In the spring, we held a one-day retreat focused on diversity and inclusion: University experts presented on the topics of gender pronouns, microaggressions, and cultural intelligence applied to academic advising interactions.
- The CLA Advising Office continued to hold intra-departmental professional development meetings: advisors research and prepare a topic, which they then present to colleagues. Due to increased caseloads and responsibilities, we held these meetings with less frequency than the previous year.
- Advisors attended the NACADA Region 1 Conference, the annual NACADA National Conference, and a NACADA In-State Conference.

Access to CLA Advising:

We continue to offer professional, developmental advising to all declared CLA majors (Strategic Goal 1, Objective 1), despite the two vacant advisor positions. This is aligned with the Administration's goal of exerting "consistent standards/performance expectations for all professional advisors." (2018-2019 GOALS PROVOST AND VICE CHANCELLOR FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS)

For this, we undertook or continued the following practices:

- Each declared major is manually assigned a CLA advisor in the student information and registration system (WISER). Advisors also reassigned each student in the vacant positions' caseloads to an existing advisor. In this way, each student was connected to a specific advisor, who did outreach, tracked, and monitored them while they did not have a permanent advisor. This ensured the consistency of standards and expectations in the Provost's goals.
- Our office uses an on-line appointment scheduling system, which sends students an immediate confirmation email, an appointment reminder email 24 hrs. in advance, and a text message reminder one hour before the appointment. The result is a decrease in missed appointments, a more efficient use of advisor time, and the opening of cancelled appointments to other students. We continue to allow students to schedule advising appointments in the same day.
- We have an on-line student intake system, which allows us to identify the students who have met with an advisor (in person or by phone), the number of advising meetings which occurred in a semester, and the times of year when traffic is the highest. We use this information to plan increased services during high-need times.
- We have continued to use WISER as a centralized note-taking system, where advisors document and share information about each student meeting. This ensures continuity of service when students need to see more than one CLA advisor and allows the Director to provide student background or context to partner offices in the absence of the corresponding advisor. We are reviewing the possibility of transitioning to the newly implemented Salesforce platform as the years of notes already stored in WISER will not transition to Salesforce. Also, some faculty advisors and CLA chairs use advisors' notes to inform their faculty advising or decisions about exceptions or waivers, so we are considering how Salesforce notes will affect this communication as faculty will not have access.

Caseload Management:

“providing developmental advising for all students” (Strategic Plan Goal 1, Objective 1)
 College of Liberal Arts declared majors are assigned a CLA advisor according to the students' last names; they receive consistent, personalized communication around deadlines; they are offered intensive, proactive advising; they receive outreach regarding early alerts; and their progress is monitored at the end of each semester and often throughout the semesters.

We refer to this type of student advising as case management, and its components are outlined below.

- Early and continuous outreach
  - New students: CLA advisors began outreach during summer 2018 orientations. This outreach continued throughout the 2018-2019 academic year, and into this summer for students not yet enrolled or not in good standing.
  - Continuing students receive outreach throughout the entire year, including summer and winter.
- Advisors foster students' timely connection to the University community; they encourage and facilitate students' early understanding of foundational requirements and relevant policies, procedures, timelines, and deadlines; they make referrals to key University services and resources; they help students to enhance their educational experience through study abroad, internships, leadership, and other enrichment opportunities; they promote and connect students to the CLA Undergraduate Research Program when appropriate; and they ensure that students are connected to a faculty advisor and/or their major(s) department(s) for advising and mentoring in the discipline.

- Advisors work with students on the following developmental endeavors:
  - becoming aware of their own learning needs, styles, and pace;
  - creating short and long-term academic goals and plans;
  - increasing their understanding of institutional and faculty expectations;
  - balancing their academic load with their personal and work lives;
  - improving their time management when necessary;
  - realizing when they need additional support and taking the steps to access services and resources (e.g. Academic Support, Career Services, Counseling Center, Financial Aid);
  - enhancing their education through additional educational opportunities (e.g. study abroad, internships, undergraduate research opportunities);
  - increasing their engagement on campus (e.g. student clubs and leadership opportunities);
  - becoming intentional and purposeful in selecting courses for the general education and electives components of their liberal arts degrees, to form an individualized, cohesive whole;
  - assuming ownership of the decisions they make about their education.

New Student Advising and Registration (NSAR):

“the steps needed to ensure that they [newly admitted students] can be successful.”
(President Caret, Goal 1, Objective 1)

Our office continues its collaboration with the University Advising Center (UAC) in designing, delivering, and assessing the CLA New Student Advising and Registration (NSAR) sessions offered during orientation for new students, both freshmen and transfers. We ensure consistency of service and accessibility to advising among declared and undecided students. In AY 2018-2019, we built on improvements which we implemented last year.

- NSARs are designed so students experience them as learning opportunities, in which they are asked to participate and actively engage with NSAR material and concepts.
- Freshman students receive a personalized welcome sheet from their advisor, including their advisor's brief bio and contact information, and an invitation to meet individually. In addition, we use this sheet to indicate new freshman placement to increase advisor efficiency and accuracy in helping these students enroll in appropriate first-semester courses at the NSAR session.
- Transfer students receive individualized course recommendation slips based on their major(s), their accepted transfer courses, and their transfer-in-progress courses. These sheets include the advisor's contact information and the office's scheduling page, and invite students to follow-up with an individualized advising session.

- For Summer 19, NSAR presentations were adapted to accommodate time reductions determined by the Orientation Steering Committee. For transfer students, this resulted in a lower advisor-to-student ratio at our college's NSARs.
  - The presentation content and time are kept to a minimum so that more of the NSAR session can be dedicated to individual advisor-student interaction, addressing students' unique situations and needs.
  - New transfer students will be sent an invitation to drop-in advising, where they can follow up on outstanding transfer credit evaluations or other concerns (see bullet below).
- Our office created CLA-specific NSAR material to better explain general education requirements and their connection to our majors.
- In Summer 19, the CLA Advising Office assumed the responsibility of organizing NSAR student groups and coverage, including computer lab assignment for students and corresponding advisors, and communication and coordination with the Office of New Student Programs.
- New students are assigned an advisor in WISER before classes start so that they feel connected to CLA Advising right away and to facilitate their access to individualized advising before classes begin. In the summer, transfer students are assigned an advisor before orientation, and freshmen are assigned one as soon as we know which students will join the freshman success community CLA First! For spring admits, we assigned advisors to both freshmen and transfers before each orientation, as special groups do not recruit from spring admits.
- This summer, the CLA Advising Office will hold Post-Orientation Drop-in Days for new freshman and transfer students. Our new sign-in log includes cell phone numbers. It was our intent to use a free online software system to text new students an invitation to drop-in days, but we have had to use email instead as that system could not accommodate our numbers.

New Student Review:

"...a fully coherent first-year experience...and transition support." (Goal 1, Objective 1)

The CLA Advising Office reviews the schedule and audit of each new, incoming CLA student with a declared major after they have attended orientation and completed NSAR. The New Student Review aims to ensure that all new students are positioned to experience a successful first semester at the institution, consistent with a timely graduation plan. Advisors verify that students are enrolled in appropriate general education and major courses, that their schedules are feasible, and that their classes align with the Start on Track, Stay on Track initiative and with a four-year graduation timeline whenever possible. Advisors conduct outreach to any student whose course schedule may present obstacles for these goals.

In addition, during Summer 19, CLA Advising will collaborate with the Registrar's office to monitor freshmen whose Advanced Placement (AP) or International Baccalaureate (IB) credits are posted after they have enrolled in classes. CLA advisors will reach out to their caseloads to adjust enrollment if students are enrolled in courses which repeat transfer credit they will receive.

The course recommendations, the NSAR sessions, the AP and IB credit outreach, and the subsequent review and outreach are initiatives which promote success in students' first semester and increase their connection to advising and to the University before classes begin. Therefore, they further the University's goal "to build a new system and culture that places and keeps students on track, integrates their academic and social experiences, and connects them to networks from the start." (Strategic Plan, Goal 1, Objective 1)

Advising Delivery and Outreach:

"connect transfer [and all] students to the university community early and often"
(Strategic Plan, Goal 1, Objective 1)

- Advising Meetings: In AY 2018-2019 (September 4, 2018 - June 6, 2019), the CLA Advising Office conducted 7,091 advising meetings, which is almost 14% more than in AY 17-18. We met with 3730 individual students, which is 24% more than the year before.

	Advising Meetings	Students Seen
AY 2018-2019	7,091	3,730
AY 2017-2018	6,241	2,988

The 24% increase in students who worked with their assigned advisors in the CLA Advising Office shows that we are succeeding in offering access and growing our visibility to students.

- Drop-ins: The CLA Advising Office offered increased availability to students at high-need times by holding drop-ins:
  - Add-Drop: As in previous years, we offered drop-ins, as well as appointments, the first week of classes. We showed a marked increase in Fall 18 numbers:

Semester	Year	Drop-ins	Appointments	Total	Staff
Spring	2019	327	171	498	9 advisors
Fall	2018	381	214	695	11 advisors
Spring	2018	321	176	497	10 advisors
Fall	2017	338	149	487	10 advisors

- Registration: Because we are now located on one floor, we piloted drop-ins the first week of registration in Spring 19. We saw 182 drop-ins and 193 appointments, which totals 375. The prior year, we saw 403 appointments during the same week in the registration process. Since we did not increase the number of students we served by offering drop-ins this week, in Fall 19, we will pilot drop-ins the week prior to registration or we will discontinue registration drop-ins altogether.
- Pass-Fail/Withdrawal: In Spring 19, our office piloted drop-ins the day before and the day of this deadline.

Semester	Drop-ins	Appts	Students Seen
Spring 2019	58	61	119

Spring 2018	NA	106	106

Although these drop-ins only slightly increased the number of students served compared to the same two days last year, we will continue to provide a drop-in option around P/F/W to ensure last-minute availability to students who realize they need to declare a class pass-fail or withdraw on the deadline.

- Residence Halls: In order to bring advising to students, our office held drop-in advising in the residence halls on two different dates. In the fall, we held them in the early afternoon, the last week of November, as soon as registration was open to all students. As we received very little response, in the spring, we tried the evening (while the residence hall cafeteria was still open). This time, we used the last week of classes in an attempt to reach students who had not yet registered, before they left for the summer. Neither event yielded significant response. Our tracking shows that the majority of residential students schedule advising on their own. Therefore, our initial conclusion is that residential students already find advising accessible, without the need for these drop-ins. We will continue to think of ways to take advantage of the residential halls.
- Mass Email Outreach: The CLA Advising office emailed all CLA declared majors (approximately 3,500 students) alerting about add-drop, withdrawal/pass-fail, registration appointments, and the early registration deadline.
- Invitation to Advising: CLA advisors emailed their individual caseloads at the beginning of the semester and to encourage registration advising early each semester.
- Events: CLA Advising collaborated with partner departments in the following recruitment, retention, and student success events: Open House, Welcome Days, Transfer Open House, 100 Days to Graduation, and Commencement.
- Publications: In AY 18-19, our office created CLA-specific instructional material for matriculated students and new CLA advising print material for promotion to potential new students and families.
- Group Advising: Our office joined partner offices in presenting workshops and doing group advising in First Year Seminars, Critical Reading and Writing classes, and at ASAP (financial aid appeal) workshops, as well as at New Student Advising and Registration.

Academic Improvement (Probation) Advising

As part of our case management advising programming, each CLA advisor does proactive, personalized outreach to students whose GPAs are below 2.0 (not in good standing—alert, probation or extended probation). These students are strongly encouraged (by our office and by Undergraduate Studies) to meet with their assigned advisor to create an academic improvement plan.

- Academic Improvement Plans: students review academic policies and procedures for students who are not in good academic standing, get connected to support resources, learn how to use the GPA calculator, reflect on what led to their standing, and devise steps and strategies—both in and out of school—for improving their GPAs and for eventual graduation.

- Readmitted Students: At the end of Fall 2018, the CLA Advising Office assumed the new responsibility of advising all students readmitted after suspension or dismissal (a role formerly housed in the Office of Undergraduate Studies). Moving forward, CLA Advising will continue advising these students, including placing and releasing specialized holds (Standards and Credits and Undergraduate Studies holds), enforcing that this readmitted population register for only two courses in their first semester (per Standards and Credits regulations), and monitoring that they achieve “extended probation” status (2.3 term GPA in six graded credits).
- Academic Improvement Resources (AIR) Committee: This group has been preparing material to use specifically with this population, focused on time management, study habits, decision making, and semester planning. This will complement, not replace, academic support services.
- Standards and Credits: This past academic year, the CLA Advising Office has gained representation on the Committee for Standards and Credits, which reviews suspended and dismissed students’ appeals for readmission. This ensures that the committee can be made aware of applicants’ relevant advising history to help in its decision. It also allows readmission appeals to be accepted and reviewed by committee after the semester ends, which is often when students are ready to appeal to resume their studies. Finally, this participation also improves CLA advisors’ ability to better guide students through the appeal and the possible reinstatement process if they are approved:
  - Advisors are now aware of the evidence of readiness the committee needs to see, they can discuss individual cases with representatives of the Committee, and they can better support students in reflecting on what they need to demonstrate in their appeal.
  - When a student is readmitted, CLA advisors have access to the academic material in that student’s appeal packet, which helps the advisor readily determine the assistance needed, as well as remind the student of the commitments they made in their readmission appeal.
  - Similarly, when an appeal is denied, the advisor has information to help the student determine next steps, including a new appeal for the following semester.

Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP) Advising

“[W]e must provide financial aid at a level that maintains our firm commitment to access and affordability,” (Goal 4)

The office of CLA Advising continues to collaborate with the office of Financial Aid to try to ensure continued financial aid for those students who are not meeting the federal government’s definition of “satisfactory academic progress” (SAP) and who must appeal to try to regain aid.

- SAP plans: CLA advisors created SAP plans for students who did not meet government guidelines, but could demonstrate extenuating circumstances, and showed a measure of progress toward graduation. The Office of Financial Aid used these plans to determine whether these students could continue to receive aid.

- ASAP workshops: CLA advisors presented Achieving Satisfactory Academic Progress (ASAP) workshops throughout the year (including winter and summer terms). These workshops are a government requirement for students who want to appeal for continued financial aid if they are not meeting SAP guidelines.
- Because students who do not meet the federal government's criteria for SAP often also struggle with the University's requirements for academic good standing, CLA advisors implement developmental and holistic academic improvement (probation) advising at the same time that they are counseling students on regaining SAP for financial aid purposes.

International Student Advising

"We expand our spheres of engagement by applying new knowledge to urban situations around the world and setting our sights on academic partnerships worldwide." (Goal 2)

- International students receive the advising services already explained. In addition, the CLA Advising Office collaborates with the Office of International Students and Scholar Services (ISSS) to complete the documents international students are required to submit when requesting program extensions, reduced course loads, and Optional Practical Training after graduation. This results in increased thoroughness and promptness in the submission of these forms, it increases students' understanding of the academic repercussions of their appeals, and it allows students to make these appeals throughout the entire calendar year (as CLA Advising is open year-round). Finally, it eliminates what faculty advisors had expressed was a responsibility outside the scope of faculty advising.
- In AY 2018-19, the ISSS office reduced its staff and had a part-time interim director. This required our office to assume enrollment responsibilities previously carried out by ISSS for our international students.
- Our office partners with, and often presents at, international student orientations to ensure enrollment and provide a smooth transition in the advising process of this student population.

Case Management Advising Results

"We want to remain accessible...in ways in which student attrition is minimized and student success is maximized." (Goal 1, Objective 1)

Our caseloads include transfers and freshmen, full-time and part-time, good standing and probation students, as well as new, continuing, and readmitted students. In addition, students are admitted in both fall and spring and at varying points in their degree attainment. Therefore, we measure our success rates by semester, rather than by year or by four-year graduation period (as would be possible if we only advised and tracked one same first-time/full-time cohort admitted in the fall). Below, are the success rates and analysis of students within the CLA Advising Office caseload. We consider two measurable factors, both foundational for persistence and graduation: academic good standing ("student success is maximized"), and re-enrollment ("attrition is minimized").

For the purposes of tracking a finite group each semester, our data includes only declared CLA majors enrolled from the beginning of the semester (our list is run at the end of the add-drop period). Our office also advises, does outreach to, and monitors all CLA declared majors who declare a major or do an inter-college transfer to CLA in the middle of the semester, but we do not include them in the data below.

At the end of Fall 2018

Of the 3292 students in the Fall 18 CLA Advising caseload (declared CLA majors enrolled from the beginning of Fall 18, excluding special groups) 74% worked with their CLA advisor; 26% either met with a faculty advisor or did not receive advising. Note that 228 students in this caseload (7%) completed their degrees in December or January, so did not require advising or hold removal.

Total Student Caseload Fall 2018 = 3292

- Students who worked with a CLA advisor (N = 2429)
  - 4% graduated in December 18 or completed their degree in January 19 (N=90)
  - 89% of 2339 continuing (non-graduating) students enrolled in Spring 19 (N=2087)
  - 11% of 2339 continuing (non-graduating) students did not enroll in Spring 19 (N=252)
  - 90% finished the semester in academic good standing, i.e.  $\geq 2.0$  GPA
Note: This refers to 2186 of the 2424 students who had a GPA. Five first-semester students had no GPA (a combination of W, INC, and P grades).

- Students who did not work with a CLA advisor (N = 863)
  - 16% graduated in December 18 or completed their degree in January 19 (N=138) Note: these students are not expected to meet with an advisor.
  - 75% of the 725 continuing students enrolled in Spring 19 (N=543)
  - 25% of the 725 continuing students did not enroll in Spring 19 (N=182)
  - 90% ended the semester in academic good standing, i.e.  $\geq 2.0$  GPA (772 of the 859 who completed the term with a GPA)

At the end of Spring 2019

Of the 3219 students in the Spring CLA Advising caseload (declared CLA majors enrolled from the beginning of Spring 19, excluding special groups), 67% worked with their CLA advisor; 33% either met with a faculty advisor or has not receive advising. Note that 579 students (18%) in this caseload completed their degrees in December or January, so did not require advising or hold removal.

The Spring 19 data was collected during the first and second weeks of June, when there are still three months left for students to enroll in the fall semester. CLA advisors will continue outreach throughout the summer and our office's enrollment rate will likely rise. (Note that many students are unable to enroll until later in the summer, when they have paid their Spring 19 bill.)

Total Student Caseload Spring 2019 = 3219

- Students who worked with a CLA advisor (N = 2146)
  - 11% graduated in May 19 or are completing their degree in August 19 (N=243)
  - 81% of the 1903 continuing students enrolled in Fall 19 (N=1532)
  - 19% of the 1903 continuing students have not enrolled in Fall 19 (N=371)
  - 92% finished the semester in academic good standing, i.e.  $\geq 2.0$  (N=1970)

- Students who did not work with a CLA advisor (N = 1070)
  - 31% graduated in May 19 or will complete their degree in August 19 (N=336)
  - 46% of the 734 continuing students enrolled in Fall 19 (N=338)
  - 54% of the 734 continuing students have not enrolled in Fall 19 (N=396)
  - 91% finished the semester in academic good standing, i.e.  $\geq 2.0$  GPA (N = 970)

Retention/Persistence Conclusion

Continuing (non-graduating) students who worked with a CLA advisor re-enrolled at higher rates than students who did not: 14% higher re-enrollment from fall to spring and 35% higher early re-enrollment from spring to fall. As noted above, there are three months of enrollment left, but the difference in early enrollment is significant and key to avoiding cancellation of low-enrolled classes and disrupting other students' degree plans. In addition, early enrollment improves student success rates as it allows optimal class and schedule selection. Receiving CLA advising has correlated with higher re-enrollment rates every year our office has collected this data. In Spring 19, we see a 10% higher difference in favor of those who worked with a CLA advisor (Spring 19=35%; Spring 18 = 25%). This is evidence of the increasingly positive impact of CLA Advising on persistence. Note that all of our caseloads receive the same notifications of enrollment dates and encouragement to enroll, both from the office and from their individual advisors. It is the actual direct advising interaction that correlates with the higher enrollment rate.

Academic Standing Conclusion

Academic good standing ( $\geq 2.0$  GPA) rates are consistent for students who worked with a CLA advisor and those who did not (around 90%). This speaks positively of the advising programming and collaborations between CLA Advising and the academic departments. Some important points to note are:

- CLA advisors see more students who are not in good standing than faculty advisors do because these students often have to complete a financial aid appeal plan and/or they need a special hold removed, both of which can only be carried out by CLA advisors. In addition, warning, alert, and probation notifications inform students that they should meet with their CLA advisor specifically. Comparable academic success rates between both groups, when one is comprised of students who start with higher GPAs, indicate the positive impact of CLA Advising's academic improvement (probation) advising.

- The CLA Advising office works to advise and prepare declared majors when they first enter the University and/or declare their major, and then encourages students to transition to faculty advising when they are in a better position to exercise success strategies, to understand policies and regulations, and have completed or planned out their general education requirements. Thus, the success of faculty advising is also a success indicator of our office’s programming and collaborations, described later in this report.
- The CLA Advising Office offers support to faculty around individual student cases. Therefore, the success of faculty advising is also a testament to our office’s work in developing, strengthening, and spreading a college-wide culture that values advising as fundamental for student success.

Student Appointment Survey:

As part of our continued assessment, for the second year in a row, our office sent a survey to each student who scheduled an appointment during peak registration advising time in the fall and spring semesters. The Fall 18 survey was a slightly shorter version of the AY 17-18 surveys, while the Spring 19 survey was created in conjunction with all other University advising offices for institutional consistency.

- Purpose: Our Fall 18 goals were to learn whether students perceived CLA advisors as available, to compare the reasons that brought students to advising and the understanding they gained, and to assess the effects of advising on students’ intended next steps.
- Timeline: We expanded our survey period from five weeks in AY 17-18 (peak hold removal and registration time) to ten weeks in AY 18-19 so as to include students who seek advising and registration later in the semester. Students who get advising early often have a greater understanding of requirements, regulations, and resources, and are better positioned to focus on school than students who delay advising and registration (often because of external responsibilities). Extending our survey timeline allowed us to capture a broader representation of our student population, allowing us to better evaluate and adjust our practice to the needs of all our students.
- Response Rate: Due to this year’s prolonged survey period, some students saw their advisor more than once and received the survey after each appointment. As students are less likely to respond to a survey more than once in a semester, our response rate went slightly down compared to last year.

Semester	Response Rate	Student Replies	Surveys Sent
Fall 18	17.3%	440	2,530
Spring 19	13%	264	1,971
Fall 17	17%	228	1,334
Spring 18	15.5% (13.5% completed)	215	1,362

Note: While this year’s spring response rate is slightly lower, the number of students who responded is higher, resulting in more accuracy.

Below, are the highlights of each survey's results:

Fall 18 Survey

- Timeliness of appointments
Over 99% of students replied that they were able to schedule an appointment within a week.
- Reasons for appointments (students could choose multiple)
The top three reasons chosen were the following:
Advising hold removal
Course selection
Degree planning
- Gains from Advising
The top gains reported by students were the following (most frequent on top)
  - Questions answered
  - Enrolled in classes or put them in my shopping cart (survey begins prior to registration)
  - A clearer understanding of my options
  - Goal setting
- Outcomes
  - 33% of respondents (159 students) replied they learned something they were not expecting in their advising meeting.
  - 26% of respondents (116 students) reported that they would take a different step or approach as a result of their advising meeting.
- Student Satisfaction
  - 23% of respondents (102 students) added positive comments about their experience advising when asked for optional general comments.
  - 1% of respondents (5 students) expressed dissatisfaction with their advising appointment (but did not opt to include information for follow-up).
  - 2% of respondents (9 students) said they would like academic advising appointments to be longer. Students can schedule as many appointments as they choose, but each individual non-probation appointment is 25 minutes long in order to offer availability to a greater number of students each day and to allow advisors to update notes and tracking.

Spring 2019 Survey

All University advising offices agreed to ask a set of common questions, with the option to include additional college-based topics. As a result, we made some adjustments in wording, incorporated the Likert scale, and removed the question about appointment availability as the previous four semesters yielded overwhelmingly positive responses and resulted in no change to our practice. In addition, we did not ask the reason for the visit and, instead, focused on unexpected information or results students gained from their advising experience.

- Gains from Advising (students could choose multiple)
The top choices are below, with the most frequent on top
  - I gained a clearer understanding of my options
  - I set or refined goals
  - I have a clearer understanding of my audit and degree requirements
  - I enrolled in classes or added them to my shopping cart

- Outcomes
This refers to whether students leave advising knowing next steps to take and whether they learned something they did not expect.
  - 82.5% of students (185) strongly agreed that they understand their next steps.
  - 16.5% (37) of students agree that they understand their next steps.
  - 24% of students (51) named a specific next step or different approach they would take as a result of their advising session.
  - 36% (82) students stated they learned something they did not expect or did not know they needed.

- Student Satisfaction
This refers to whether students would return to meet with an advisor in the CLA Advising Office in the future, based on this experience.
  - 86% of students (193) strongly agreed.
  - 12.5% of students (28) agreed.
  - <1% of students (2) disagreed: one believes advising should not be required unless the student needs it; another stated they received different information about their required remaining course number (as the survey is anonymous, we cannot verify whether the student was previously advised in our office or elsewhere).
  - <0.5% of students (1) strongly disagreed, but replied “strongly agreed” to knowing next steps from the advising session, and responded that they had set or refined goals, enrolled in classes or added them to their shopping cart, received information about graduation, and created a plan to complete the Writing Proficiency Evaluation in their advising session.

- Improving Services
This question was added in spring and asks what the CLA Advising Office could do to improve students’ advising experience.
  - 5% of students (12) responded with suggestions: make offices easier to find (3), make appointments longer (1), offer better times (1), offer assistance with finances and personal problems (1), allow registration without advising (1), allow larger course loads when readmitted after suspension (1), encourage more frequent appointments (1), create resources for students to avoid probation/suspension (1), eliminate follow-up emails after survey (1), convey more consistent information among advisors (1)—this is the same student as in the previous bullet.
  - 22% of students (51) responded nothing should be changed.

- 10% of students (23) spontaneously added positive comments about their experience. (Note: the spring survey had no section for general comments, so these students added positive notes in other sections.)

AY 18-19 Survey Conclusions:

- Spring 19 is the first time in five semesters of surveys in which “enrolled in classes or put them in my shopping cart” is chosen fourth in frequency rather than second. This does not mean that students enrolled less frequently during advising appointments. Rather, students expect registration as part of advising, so it is not what stands out to them. In contrast, they are often surprised and more reflective about the guidance they receive in deliberate educational planning and reflective decision-making.
- The overwhelming percentage of responses indicating students know they need to take next steps—many naming exact steps—is a positive indicator of CLA Advising’s impact on students’ learning process. Students often seek only transactional advising (information delivery, hold removal, and course registration), which they believe completes their advising needs. However, holistic advising invites students to reflect on decisions and choices they are continually making and to take active steps toward continued or improved success and enrichment of their education.
- Many students commented that they realized they had been missing information (i.e. students don’t know what they don’t know). It is in conversations with their CLA advisors that students often realize they need support in understanding their options and making deliberate, informed decisions; that they benefit from assisted reflection about their learning needs; and/or that they have unaddressed topics which impact their academic success. This is substantiated by the number of students who replied they learned something unexpected and/or would modify a behavior as a result of advising, confirming that CLA advisors are effectively guiding students to discover hidden obstacles and reflect on ways to increase their success.
- While the office locations are outside our department’s control, we agree our scattered offices and lack of a reception area/person present a problem. We continue to develop ways to deliver clear directions to students: appointment confirmation emails contain directions to the advisor’s office, our website links each advisor’s name to directions, and we have posted our own signs throughout our halls. We are hopeful that the University will create official signage in our area now that other office moves have been completed.
- Below, are examples of what students report to have learned and gained from CLA Advising. These quotes illustrate how professional advising addresses developmental and holistic student needs, and how this leads to students’ persistence, academic success, educational enrichment, and more timely graduation:
  - “I learned how to pick my classes properly and read/understand my degree audit which I was struggling with a lot. I wasn’t expecting the amount of support that I received and I feel a lot better about when I feel like I need help with something, I know I can always go to this advisor.”

- “I was not expecting a referral to an alum and coordinator that works with the school. It was a great option for me to speak with the alum because she provided me some mentor help that I really needed and she offered me a safe space to study that I was looking for since the beginning of the semester.”
- “Take time off of work to focus on school. I will choose my classes and take more consideration into what will work best with my schedule.”
- “More important information about the WPE that I never knew before. And how I can handle the test as I can not take the test at the end of this semester.”
- “I will be able to write my personal statement that I needed to submit for some paperwork that my advisor help me outline. I will speak to my professor whose class I am struggling in and discuss my progress and what I can do to improve.”
- “Experience is extraordinary. I basically live in your offices. Thanks for all the patience and guidance!”
- “I learned that I can take music classes for an additional credit to be able to reach my credit goal to graduate on time”
- “To stay focused and grounded. I tend to get anxious in the middle of semesters.”
- “decided on trying for a second minor”
- “Better way to study”
- “Ways to boost my GPA and strategies/process to apply for grad school”

Faculty Advising: Collaboration and Support

“We need to significantly increase the capacity of departments to provide advising for declared majors.” (Goal 1, Objective 1)

The College of Liberal Arts recognizes that both faculty and professional advisors are key to student success because their combined areas of expertise result in a truly holistic approach to academic advising. The assignment of both a CLA advisor and a faculty advisor to each of our students constitutes an important accomplishment for our college: faculty advisors provide in-semester guidance within their disciplines and mentor students on undergraduate to post-graduate planning, and CLA advisors offer year-round developmental advising, focused on helping students create academic plans, complete general education requirements, augment their liberal arts education with deliberate course selection, balance life circumstances with academic goals, utilize University support resources, and enhance their education with co-curricular enrichment opportunities (leadership development, study abroad, internships, undergraduate research, etc.).

- Support for Faculty Advising

The CLA Advising Office provides support, consultation, and training to enhance faculty advising “to augment faculty advising in the majors” (Goal 1, Objective 1):

- During AY 18-19, the Director of the CLA Advising Office provided individual degree requirement instruction to new CLA faculty who were going to have advising responsibilities.

- All CLA advisors serve as consultants for faculty advisors in CLA: an increasing number of faculty advisors consult and collaborate with CLA advisors on individual student cases.
- The Director of CLA Advising continues to serve as consultant for all faculty advising, particularly chairs, in the College throughout the year.
- During AY 18-19, our office invited departments to several of our staff meetings, to discuss their major(s) and advising structure. We also visited department meetings to share our advising structure and practices and ensure smooth collaboration.
- Our department continues its department liaison program, explained below.
- Collaborations with Faculty Advising
  - Department Liaisons: To facilitate and enhance communication with the CLA academic departments, our office assigns a CLA advisor to each academic department to contact the department at least two times each semester to collect departmental information and share it with our office. Our liaison attends departmental events when invited (e.g. group advising and student-faculty meet-and-greets) and they often became point persons for faculty advising consultation in their connected department. The purpose of this department liaison system is to increase fluent communication, information sharing, and familiarity between faculty advisors in the College and CLA advisors, to promote joint advising to our students who then benefit from all the College can offer, and to strengthen the culture of advising in the College of Liberal Arts.
  - The CLA Advising Office created a “departments-at-a-glance” document, which lists department contacts for referrals, as well as salient information (internship timelines, individual departmental policies) to help CLA advisors make timely referrals to faculty advisors or chairs.
- Faculty Advising Committee: This ad-hoc committee is chaired by the CLA Advising Director and integrated by at least one member of each CLA undergraduate department. (Unfortunately, some departments were unable to send a representative this past year.) It meets once a month during the fall and spring semesters, to work toward a greater culture of student success in faculty advising and, thereby, meet “the need to build a new system and culture that places and keeps students on track, integrates their academic and social experiences, and connects them to networks from the start.” (Goal 1, Objective 1)
The Committee’s goals are the following:
  - To discuss policy that affects student success in CLA.
  - To serve as a group of point persons and disseminators of advising-related information in the academic departments.
  - To raise issues of concern for faculty advising.
  - To consider best practices in faculty and professional advising collaborations.
  - To engage in professional development around advising issues (e.g. study abroad, student life concerns, and career advising).
  - To bring to the CLA Dean’s attention issues that faculty advisors consider need to be addressed by the administration.

In AY 18-19, the Committee focused its work on revising the previous CLA Faculty Advising Syllabus and transforming it into Faculty Advising Guidelines. The syllabus concentrated responsibilities on the student and clarified the reasonable expectations students could have of faculty advisors. In contrast, the new guidelines make brief mention of student responsibilities; they recognize and describe the partnership between CLA Advising and faculty advising; and they outline in detail the responsibilities of faculty advisors to be communicative and available, know their majors and the point persons in their departments, provide guidance on career and graduate plans, be familiar with general education, have a working knowledge of academic policies, and provide basic student referrals. This shift in accountability reveals the College's progress in promoting a culture of advising and student support. We continue to work to ensure that CLA is student-centered not only in the classroom, but outside as well.

Salesforce

Aligned with the University's implementation of the online platform Salesforce, our office has been tracking and contacting students with early alerts on this system. We have also used it for reenrollment outreach during the campaign led by the Triage Committee in the Spring. We have attended training on its new function linked to Outlook, and we look forward to finding ways to use this in conjunction with our note-taking system.

Social Media

In the spring 2019 term, our office launched CLA Advising social media communication on two platforms: Twitter and Instagram. On Instagram, we have 137 followers, with an average of 23 "likes" per post, with the highest engaged post to date at 41 likes. We have used Instagram to connect with campus departments, promote activities, and invite students to events. Our goal is to increase the number of weekly posts, with the goal of increasing student engagement and offering an online space for students to express creativity. The CLA Advising Twitter account has been less successful due to the fact that it requires daily posts and, consequently, more time. The two most popular tweets were during a freshman NSAR and the day of Commencement, suggesting that peak group activity events are the most fruitful for engaging new followers.

Development Plans for AY 2019-2020:

Along with continuing our current efforts, below are listed additional CLA Advising Office goals for the next academic year:

- Optimize our utilization of shared resources through the creation of one central shared drive for the storing of information.
- Clarify and solidify the readmission advising processes now that CLA Advising forms part of the Committee on Standards and Credits.
- Explore ways to systematically receive updates when students declare a CLA major (from undecided or as an inter-college transfer) or are readmitted, so that we can assign CLA advisors and reach out to the students promptly. (Currently, we do not learn this information right away.)
- The Academic Improvement Resources (AIR) Committee will collect all advising tools being used in our department, identify areas in need of materials, and create additional resources. This committee will then put these resources on line for advisors and students.

- Expand the CLA Advising website and Black Board to incorporate the student success tools generated by the AIR Committee.
- The department still hopes to incorporate text messaging to contact and deliver information to students to increase outreach effectiveness.
- Continue expanding our social media presence.
- Incorporate online advising, utilizing the Zoom platform, which also allows screen sharing so that online advising aligns with our hands-on, educational in-person advising approach.

2018-2019 Highlights:

The Office of Career Services and Internships (OCSI) in collaboration with the College of Liberal Arts continued to support the career development of students and alumni through individual career appointments and innovative career programming.

In support of the College of Liberal Arts' academic mission, the CLA Career Specialists, along with other members of the Career Services team, presented 70 classroom presentations reaching approximately 1401 students. The CLA Career Specialists provided (1) workshop to graduate students in the Sociology Pro-seminar. Additionally, CLA students were able to participate in career programs like the Career Symposium, Pre-Law Workshops, CLA First!, SophoMORE, and an Etiquette Dinner. The CLA Career Specialists provided 24 special events and workshops, outside of the classroom, to approximately 266 students.

The CLA Career Services Specialists conducted 1180 individual career appointments with students and alumni during the 2018-2019 academic year. This number includes 216 drop-ins and 964 appointments.

- During the 2018-2019 academic year, the Office of Career Services and Internships (OCSI), in collaboration with the College of Liberal Arts and University Advancement, presented the ninth annual Career Symposium. Sixteen CLA alumni returned to campus to speak with 79 students about their career paths and how they leveraged their liberal arts degree when building their career. Alumni were encouraged to share information on available jobs, internships, and volunteer opportunities with their organizations. Many alumni shared current opportunities with students, so students could see the variety of ways they could get involved and build their resumes as they work towards their future career goals. The Career Symposium was a great learning and networking opportunity for CLA students. At least one student received an internship through this networking event and interned at City Hall in the Office of returning citizens.
- There was continued involvement in SophoMORE, including facilitating workshops regarding resumes, informational interviews, preparing for the Career Expo, and cover letters. Career Specialists for CLA also supported with SophoMORE job shadow contact development and placements and continued involvement in CLA First! through facilitating a Focus 2 workshop.
- The Office of Career Services and Internships continues to have a support system in place to help any CLA student who wants an internship understand how to proactively find and secure one. Additionally, the Manager of University Internships has helped build special partnerships with local employers and CLA students have the opportunity to apply for those internships. Applicable partnership internships include the City of Boston, Edward M. Kennedy Institute, Mass Archive Facilities and Commonwealth Museum, Mass State House-Governor's Office, Commercial Real Estate Success Training (CREST), State Street, Justice Bridge Legal Center, and the Boston Private Industry Council.
- The Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts collaborated with the Associate Director for Career Education to develop course curricula for both a one-credit and three-credit version of a new College of Liberal Arts Careers in Humanities Course. The one credit course will run in the fall of 2019.
- In collaboration between the Manager of University Internships and the Career Specialists for CLA, an electronic document is continually maintained with the appropriate personnel and department chairs in CLA departments for students to contact in regards to obtaining academic credit for internship opportunities.

- The Career Specialist for College of Liberal Arts and Manager of University Internships participated in the external review process for the Professional and New Media Writing Program, meeting with external reviewers to discuss the partnership between Career Services and Internships and the Professional and New Media Writing Program as well as student internship experiences.
- The Manager of University Internships, Career Specialist for CLA, and Director of Career Services and Internships were involved with various conversations across campus to support Justice Bridge Legal Center in offering a satellite location on campus for free or reduced cost legal consultation (based on financial need). A partnership moved forward between Justice Bridge and U-ACCESS, with Justice Bridge has a presence on campus every Tuesday afternoon. Justice Bridge is a popular internship site for pre-law students.
- This past academic year, many employers, including the City of Boston, Loomis Sayles, Massachusetts State Police, Peace Corps, Sherwin Williams, The U.S. Coast guard, Vermont Police, Boston Police Department, and Boston Public Health Commission were on campus to recruit students for opportunities. In the spring of 2019 semester 100 employers attended the Career Expo. The Career Specialists for CLA actively promoted employer sessions as well as internship and job opportunities to students through individual appointments, emails, and during classroom presentations as applicable. The Career Specialist also hosted workshops on “How to Market Your Liberal Arts Degree” and “How to Prepare for the Career Fair” right before the Career fair to boost students success.
- CLA collaborated with the Office of Career Services and Internships (OCSI) and the University Advising Center (UAC) to continue to build a pre-law advising program with a dedicated OCSI career specialist and dedicated UAC advisor. Highlights from the 2018-2019 academic year include:
  - A new webinar, focused on Financing Law School, hosted by AccessLex, was offered specifically to University of Massachusetts Boston students and alumni, followed by in-residence office hours.
  - New student handouts for the open house, welcome days, and the University website to highlight the 3+3 program with University of Massachusetts School of Law.
  - Multiple law schools visits, engaging students through tabling and specialized workshops. Schools included Suffolk University Law School, Northeastern School of Law, New England Law | Boston, and the University of Massachusetts School of Law-Dartmouth. Fall programming also included a new workshop, “Freshman to Law School” with special guest speaker Edward Stern, Co-Author of The Stern-Wilson Book of Law School Lists.
    - 23 students participated in the law school visits and special workshops, a 130% increase in attendance from law school visits and events last academic year.
  - Tailored outreach to an average of 70 students and 25 alumni who were active on the Pre-Law listserv. Students received 29 tailored emails (45% increase) regarding events, resources, and scholarship opportunities.
  - Student participation in experiential learning opportunities. Justice Bridge Legal Center’s Legal Intern position continues to be a popular choice amongst pre-law students, with 4 students serving as legal interns during the 2018-2019 academic year.
  - 25 UMass Boston students/alumni matriculated into law school in fall 2018.
    - Students/alumni matriculated into the following institutions: Suffolk University Law School, New England Law | Boston, Boston College, Cornell Law School, University of Miami School of Law, California Western School of Law, University of Massachusetts

School of Law-Dartmouth, Fordham University School of Law, Western New England University School of Law, and Roger Williams University School of Law.

- For the coming academic year, 50 UMass Boston students and alumni applied for admission for fall 2019.
- Pre-Law Advisors participated in multiple meetings with Dr. Philip Kretsedemas, Associate Professor of Sociology, to provide ideas and information for the grant he is applying to through the AccessLex Foundation's Diversity Pipeline program.

- Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts continued to provide a variety of classroom presentations for CLA students, including offering the Don't Cancel That Class program for faculty, when missing a class might be unavoidable, such as when attending a conference. In total, 15 classroom presentations were offered through the Don't Cancel That Class program reaching 367 students.

- The Career Specialists for College of Liberal Arts, along with the Assistant Director of Career Services and Internships, led the Federal Careers Forum. The keynote speaker for this year was from FEMA. A total of 7 federal agency representatives kicked-off the event, highlighting the opportunities, benefits, and working for the federal government. Students had an opportunity to hear from panelists representing a variety of organizations, including the Coast Guard, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA fisheries), Transportation and Security Administration, U.S. Department of State, and U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. These panelists shared with students' information on their agencies, including what students could do during their time at UMass Boston to become competitive for positions.

- CLA students took advantage of the Beacon Student Success Fellowship which provides financial support to undergraduate and graduate students engaging in summer experiential learning activities such as unpaid or underpaid internships, volunteer work, a faculty-supervised research project, study abroad, participation in an academic symposium, travel related to academic projects and study, and other forms of experiential learning. For the summer of 2019, 30 of the 92 students awarded Beacon Student Success Fellowships were from the College of Liberal Arts. In total 44% of students who have received this fellowship, since 2014, have been CLA students.

- At the Undergraduate Research Week, the Career Services and Employer Relations Specialist for CLA was present to interact with the presenters, introduce the Office of Career Services and Internships, and encouraged students to visit Career Services and learn how to showcase their work and talents to employers, relating their work to experience. Students' work was documented in a short video and highlighted in on the @beaconcareers social media platforms.

					Vittoria Colonna (c. 1490-1547): Poetry, Religion, Art, Impact Vittoria Colonna is perhaps the outstanding female figure of the Italian Renaissance, celebrated as a leading Petrarchan poet and an important figure in the Italian Reform movement. She is also remarkable for the quality of her relationships, as attested in her letters and epistolary verse. She corresponded with figures of the stature of Baldassare Castiglione, Pietro Bembo, Reginald Pole, Marguerite de Navarre, Charles V; and she had a famously intimate friendship with Michelangelo Buonarroti, to whom an important manuscript collection of her verse is addressed. The volume to which this proposal relates collects fresh and original work on Colonna by established and emerging scholars in the fields of literature, book history, and art history. Its central contention, set out in the opening essay, by the editor, Virginia Cox ("The Twenty-First Century Vittoria Colonna") is that we are now in a better position than ever before to appreciate the magnitude of Colonna's achievement and stature, as a result of developments within the field of Italian literary studies over the past three decades or so.
